Dixie Steel Expansion To Cost 30 Million

Ingot Capacity To Be Boosted 400,000 Tons

Program Intended To Prevent 'Bottleneck' in Industry.

By The Associated Press.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 13.—Moving to prevent any defense "bottleneck" in the strategic steel industry, the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, U. S. Steel's southern subsidiary, announced a broad expansion program today estimated unofficially to cost up to $30,000,000.

The program, to be completed by midsummer, 1942, will increase steel ingot capacity here by 400,000 tons annually, and will relieve the drastic shortage of raw materials which has been a point of concern since capacity operations started several months ago.

400,000-Ton Increase
A new blast furnace, capable of producing in the neighborhood of 400,000 tons of iron annually, is one part of the program. The Tennessee company, faced with insistent demand for steel and short of iron from its own furnaces, has been buying pig iron and semi-finished steel from other United States Steel units in recent weeks.

Open hearth furnaces, which take the raw pig iron and turn it into steel, will be modernized and enlarged to add 20 per cent to their production.

Similar increases all along the line are planned for coal mines, ore mines, limestone quarries and transportation facilities. In addition, the Fairfield plate mill will be enlarged and a new 140-inch plate mill installed.

More Machinery.
Additional machinery, expanding maximum output, will be installed in the wire mill and sheet mill, both at the Fairfield works. The Tennessee Company is now engaged in a 75,000-ton order for Army ordnance, and has been manufacturing ship plates, for use by the new shipbuilding facilities at Pascagoula, Miss., and Mobile, for several months.

The program announced today ranks with the 1936 program, now completed, as the largest single expansion in the history of the Alabama steel industry.

Within a space of four years, the $30,000,000 tin plate program, a $5,000,000 one-conditioning plant, a $5,000,000 addition to the tin plate mill, and several smaller improvements have been announced.

The present program will bring capital expenditures by the Tennessee Company to approximately $75,000,000 since 1936.

Cooled by Orders.
Steel's place in the national defense program has been emphasized by recent discussions of establishing priorities for essential defense needs.

Birmingham mills were choked by domestic orders before heavy defense business appeared.

Industrial observers regarded as significant the fact that northern steel and iron is being shipped here for finishing. During the World War, hundreds of thousands of tons of Alabama iron went to northern mills for manufacture into steel and finishing.

Blizzard Moves Toward East; 123 Are Dead

Lakes Area Still Lashed by One of Worst November Storms.

By The United Press.
A bitter cold wave moved eastward last night across the central states and the Great Lakes region, where gales and blizzards of one of the worst November storms in history had battered cities and shipping, killed at least 123 persons and destroyed crops, livestock and property.

As winds diminished over Lake Michigan, hardest hit of the Great Lakes, coast guardmen reported six boats sunk, six grounded and scores of small craft torn to pieces. The bodies of 18 seamen had been recovered along the wreckage-scattered Michigan shore. Fifty-one were missing and feared dead.

In three days the storm, following an erratic course eastward from the Rocky Mountains, had, in addition to the deaths, injured hundreds and caused uncounted millions of dollars' property damage.

The cold killed more than 1,000,000 Thanksgiving turkeys in the Midwest, causing a cent-and-a-half-per-pound rise in the wholesale price at Chicago.

Minnesota, where 34 were known dead, was digging out of one of the worst blizzards in its history.

Only California and Florida escaped the cold wave which had sent temperatures below zero in the northern tier of states from the Rockies to Michigan and brought readings elsewhere in the nation to 20 to 30 degrees below normal.

(Additional storm details will be found on Page 24.)

U. S. Stands Shy of Dies Probe Of German Consular Agents

Hull Tells Investigator To Use Judgment on Whether Findings Would Embarrass Government in Conduct of Affairs With Berlin.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(UP)—The State Department today, in effect, disclaimed any responsibility if the Dies committee investigating non-American activities holds public hearings on activities of German consular agents in this country.

This stand was indicated by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who advised Dies he must make his own decision on whether to hold such hearings.

Dies' group had turned over to the State Department what was described as "certain evidence" which we obtained showing the activities and propaganda of German consuls and agents.

Dies subsequently said in a telegram to Hull that, unless the State Department could show sufficient cause for further delay, he would go ahead, beginning November 22, with plans for public hearings, based on material seized at German business and news offices here and in New York.

He had asked Hull specifically whether the inquiry would "create strained relations or jeopardize the position of our representatives in Germany."

In his reply, Hull told Dies that the State Department was "neither an investigating nor a prosecuting agency."

The State Department's position had been that it is anxious to avoid a rupture in relations because such action undoubtedly would force it to request German emissaries to leave and to recall its own men from Germany, where they now can serve as "watchdogs."

Recently Hull warned that this government would not tolerate any interference by foreign diplomats in American internal policies. The warning was aimed at a German official in New Orleans.

State Baptists Seek 5 Million For Education

Mercer To Be Chief Beneficiary of Endowment Drive.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Georgia Baptists will launch a campaign March 1 for $5,000,000 to be used as endowments for the denomination's five educational institutions in this state, delegates at the Georgia Baptist convention decided here this afternoon.

The fund will be divided so that $3,600,000 will go to Mercer University; $600,000 to Bessie Tift College at Forsyth; $400,000 to Shorter College, Rome; and $200,000 each to Brewton Parker Institute and Norman Junior College.

General plans for the campaign which will be financed by the state convention were adopted upon recommendation of a special committee of seven on education headed by Arthur Jackson, Savannah, chairman.

Final session of the convention will open at 9 o'clock Thursday morning at the First Baptist church. Principal speakers will be Carr P. Collins, Dallas, Texas; Miss Bertha Rachel Palmer, Chicago, and Dr. Earle V. Pierce, Minneapolis, Minn. The meeting will adjourn at noon.

Suit No Bar To 'Necessary' Highway Work

Repair or Maintenance Spending Can Proceed, Arnall Rules.

Attorney General Ellis Arnall last night prepared a letter for submission to members of the State Highway Board informing them that a temporary injunction signed by Judge Lee B. Wyatt, of LaGrange, will not prohibit the department from carrying on its necessary and essential functions.

The Highway Department was waiting for a legal interpretation of the order, which was the result of a petition brought by MacDougald Construction Company, Atlanta contractors, seeking collection of $169,260 on 18 road contracts.

Text of Letter.
Arnall set out five things which the restraining order did prohibit pending the hearing, which has been tentatively set for November 20 at Carrollton. Following is the text of Arnall's letter:

"In compliance with your request I am pleased to give you my interpretation of the temporary restraining order granted by the Honorable Lee B. Wyatt, judge of Coweta superior courts, on November 11, 1940, in the matter of MacDougald Construction versus Miller, Patten, Watson, et al.

"It is my opinion that the order of the court in this matter does not prohibit the State Highway Department from carrying on its necessary and essential functions.

Restrictions Cited.
"It does, however, prohibit the defendants from doing the following acts only:

"1. Purchasing any machinery or equipment other than for repairs and maintenance.

"2. Letting any new state or federal-aid road contracts other than 100 per cent federal-aid projects authorized by the Federal Bureau of Roads.

"3. Buying any road-building materials for any new projects except essential to convict or WPA operations.

"4. Paying for any equipment purchased since July 1, 1940, except for repairs or maintenance.

"5. Paying for any highway-building material contracted for since July 1, 1940, except in the operation of state convict, WPA, or maintenance forces."

Italians Attack U.S. Envoy to Reds

ROME, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, today accused Laurence A. Steinhardt, United States ambassador to Moscow, of trying unsuccessfully to aid Great Britain by "intrigues" at the Soviet capital.

Mario Appellus, military commentator for the newspaper, said that Soviet Premier Molotov's visit to Berlin "shows that the intrigues by which British plutocracy sought at the last moment to cancel out 100 years of England's anti-Russian policy failed, as was logical.

"The efforts, made at Moscow by the ambassador of the North American plutocracy to aid the ambassador of English plutocracy were themselves out. The diplomatic successes of his excellency Steinhardt have been equal to those of Sir Stafford Cripps (British ambassador to Moscow)."

British Cripple Half Of Duce's Battleships

By The United Press.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Britain rejoiced tonight at hammer blows struck by the Royal Navy against Italy which crippled half of Italy's battleships and restored the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean to Britain.

Within a 24-hour period, the admiralty announced, 12 Italian warships and supply vessels were sunk, crippled or damaged by fleet air arm and surface units in two pitched battles.

Heavy Toll Taken.

The battles took place Monday and Monday night. When the smoke had cleared, this was the score of Italian losses: Two battleships crippled and a third probably crippled, two cruisers crippled, two escort vessels crippled, three supply ships sunk or burned, one supply ship damaged and one destroyer hit by shellfire. In the fighting Britain lost two fleet air arm planes.

The action was in two engagements—a fleet air arm attack in force on the main Italian battle fleet at its Taranto base and an attack by British light surface vessels on an escorted Italian convoy, in the straits of Otranto. The most spectacular, and the most damaging to Italy, was at Taranto.

Taranto is inside the heel of the Italian boot; the narrow straits of Otranto separate Italy and Albania.

"Go In and Get Them."

Putting the old Nelsonian maxim "Go in and get them if they won't come out" into sudden and shocking effect, the navy's air arm—probably operating from aircraft carriers—on Monday night struck at the main Italian fleet inside its own shore defenses at the Taranto base.

Because the Italians fled for the safety of their coastal batteries each time they sighted the British Mediterranean fleet, Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, commander of the British Mediterranean fleet, sent in a concentration of his

Prompt Closing U.S.-Mexican Of Auditorium Pact on Bases Will Be Urged Is Reported

Completion of Repairs Will Take Until First of Year. $50,000,000 Cost Said Involved in Proposed Defense Sites.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13.—(UP) Military and naval sources reported unofficially tonight that the Mexican and United States governments have concluded a defense agreement granting United States armed forces access to Mexican naval and air bases.

These sources reported that the agreement was secretly signed shortly after Mexican Ambassador Don Francisco Castillo Najera returned to Washington October 28 and involved the improvement of eight ports, five of which would embrace the development of air base facilities. They also said that highways would be improved substantially and made available for military use.

The agreement was said to involve a $50,000,000 expenditure in the development of combined naval and air bases at Acapulco, Tampico, Ciudad del Carmen, Cozumel and Isla Margarita, and bases exclusively for naval use at Salina Cruz, Pacific terminal of the Tehuantepec Isthmus railroad, and at Guaymas, Vera Cruz, the site of the Mexican naval training station.

A coastal patrol station already is established at Acapulco. Isla Margarita, situated on Magdalena bay, lower California has been described often as one of the most perfect potential naval harbors in North America.

The Mexicans were hopeful that the $50,000,000 would be made available through the Export and Import Bank despite recent advances from Washington that the bank had no immediate plans for loans to Mexico.

It was recalled tonight that President Lázaro Cárdenas announced October 30 that any defense bases would be strictly under Mexican supervision.

U. S. SPOKESMAN DENIES AGREEMENT CONCLUDED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(UP) A State Department spokesman said tonight that there was "nothing to" Mexico City reports that the United States and Mexico have concluded a defense agreement granting this country's armed forces access to Mexican naval and air bases.

Soviet-German Collaboration Plan Reported

British Fliers Kept From Inner-City, Nazis Declare.

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—(Thursday)—Britain's night hawk patrol raided Berlin last night while Russia's Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov wound up his fateful talks with German leaders which some observers have predicted would result in a new Soviet-Nazi alignment.

A communique said the raiders rained bombs "aimlessly" on the suburbs and hit residential sections, but failed to reach the inner city because of strong anti-aircraft defenses. Some rooftop fires were said to have been started, but were extinguished quickly.

Nazi informants said Molotov's reception, given last night in return for the German banquet tendered in his honor was held "as scheduled." There had been reports Molotov would wind up his Berlin stay today, but these sources said it had not been determined when he would leave.

Four-Hour Farley.
The informants did not state whether Molotov rushed to Berlin's air raid shelters with his retinue of 33 Soviet experts.

The British bombers struck soon after Hitler and Molotov had completed a four-hour conference.

The information regarding the conversation was confined merely to the statement that they talked over "negotiations," a term that suggested preliminary talks were done and the stage of decisions reached, although there was nothing to hint of their nature.

Long-Range Program.
Nazi press sources were reserved. For example, the authoritative commentary service Dienst Aus Deutschland observed that certain speculations abroad were mere "trial balloons" of interested persons, and added that a "further deepening" German-Russian relations was in prospect.

Molotov's talks with Hitler—yesterday's was the second and longest—were described by certain informed sources as intended to develop a long-range program of Soviet-Nazi collaboration.

Musks With Goering.
The Russian spent the morning in discussions with Reichsmarschal Herman Wilhelm Goering and Nazi Party Leader Rudolf Hess. Goering, as the man directing the aerial battle against Britain, was presumed to have given his views of the state of affairs—both military and economic—in Germany, since he is, among other things, director of the German four-year plan.

During the day it was reported the Turkish ambassador had called at the German foreign office. The world has speculated much that Hitler may intend to get Russia to put sufficient pressure upon pro-British Turkey to keep her out of any developing Balkan or Near East war.

Batista Would Spurn Sword Gift

HAVANA, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The new Spanish consul to Cuba, Genaro Riestra, arrived today reportedly bringing President Fulgencio Batista a sword as a gift from the Falangist party—a gift Batista declared in advance would be improper and inappropriate.

Coincidentally with the arrival of Riestra, himself a Falangist, Batista through a secretary said that so far as he knew the reports that he is to be the recipient of a Falangist sword "are lacking in truth."

"He further esteems it improper and inappropriate to think that a foreign political party with an ideology so contrary to that of the persons who have elected him (Batista) should intend such an act as that to which the cable reports refer."

Lamont Warns Japan To Alter Her Policies

Sloan Calls for Return of U. S. Labor to Six-Day Work Week.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(P)—Thomas W. Lamont tonight sounded "a friendly but urgent caution" to Japan to change her Far Eastern policies and declared that "our only effective answer to the Far Eastern threat must be constantly increasing aid to England and continued and additional aid to China."

At the same meeting, a dinner of the Academy of Political Science, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation, called for a return of American labor to a six-day work week and elimination of the overtime "penalty" to speed the production of industry.

"America today is working a shorter number of hours per week than any other nation, certainly any other involved in war or defense," he said in his prepared address.

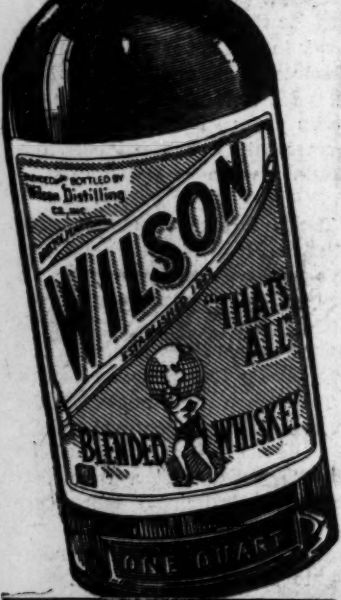

Lamont, a J. P. Morgan partner, and for 20 years chairman of the International Consortium for the Assistance of China, declared that the United States "continued and additional" aid to China should "take the form of material supplies and planes as well as credits." He added:

"Japan must abandon once and for all in the Far East the Nazi theory of racial superiority and the idea of 'Asia's new order.'"

He asserted the "attempt to throw Americans into a panic" had failed, and he advised Japan that "if the time comes when she needs help, Germany and Italy can and will afford their Far Eastern ally no aid whatsoever."

Green Predicts F. D. R. Plea for Labor Peace

Says Lewis Withdrawal Would Facilitate Matters.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(P)—A renewed request by President Roosevelt that the CIO and the AFL patch up their differences in the interest of a united labor front was predicted today by William Green, AFL president, after a White House conference.

Talking with reporters, Green also said that labor peace would be "greatly facilitated" if John L. Lewis would "get out of a commanding position" in the CIO.

Lewis promised during the recent presidential campaign to resign as CIO head if President Roosevelt were re-elected, but he still would be a powerful figure in the CIO through his presidency of the United Mine Workers. Green said today that the mine union dominated the CIO.

Mr. Roosevelt, Green asserted, would send a message to the AFL's annual convention in New Orleans next week.

"I judge he will ask for peace," he added. "He did before and I am of the opinion that he will again."

Green said he and Mr. Roosevelt had discussed peace prospects and that he had given assurance that the AFL committee would be glad to resume negotiations with the CIO which were broken off some time ago.

RIGHTS TO ORGANIZE IN NAVY YARDS ASKED

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—(P)—Full rights of American workers to organize and participate in union activity in United States navy yards were asked today by the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

LEWIS ONLY SMILES AT GREEN'S COMMENT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 13.—(P)—John L. Lewis, president of the CIO, read with apparent interest tonight a news story from Washington that William Green of the A. F. of L. had been talking with President Roosevelt about possible negotiations between the two labor factions.

Lewis smiled fleetingly at the paragraph in which Green was quoted as saying prospects of labor peace were better now because Lewis "didn't exercise" quite the same influence in the rank and file that he did when negotiations (between the AFL and CIO) were carried on before.

When the CIO leader finished reading he said:

"I have nothing to say about this stuff now."

Japanese Drive In Indo-China Believed Near

Deal With Russia for Tapering Off China War Reported.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 14.—(Thursday)—Japan has evolved a definite formula for tapering off her undeclared war with China and now is preparing for a push to the southward, possibly designed to flank Britain's great Singapore naval base, according to reports in diplomatic circles today.

Informal quarters believed the Japanese push will start within a week and will result in an immediate occupation of Saigon and other strategic points in Indo-China not covered by the French-Japanese agreement of September.

The Japanese have come to a "final agreement" with Russia outlining each nation's sphere of influence in Asia, according to the reports, and have concentrated large numbers of soldiers on Hainan island, off the coast of French Indo-China, which will serve as a starting point for the "southward push."

A reported British-American decision regarding joint policy in the Pacific and joint use of the Singapore base by the British and American fleets was believed linked to the Japanese activities.

Adjournment Up To Congress-FDR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(P)—While Democratic legislative leaders planned an adjournment of congress early next week, the White House issued a statement today saying that President Roosevelt believed the law-making branch should make its own decision as to whether it should quit until January.

The statement, given to reporters by Stephen Early, press secretary, said the chief executive had told Speaker Rayburn today that "in so far as he (the President) is concerned he did not have any new legislation of such importance as to justify its being sent to the present congress."

Several hours before that, Rayburn informed newsmen that an adjournment resolution would be offered in the house next Tuesday. A similar resolution will be presented in the senate at about the same time by Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, Democratic leader.

Two Recitals Are Delayed Till Next Year

Menuhin, Rachmaninoff Concerts Postponed Due to Fire.

Recitals by Yehudi Menuhin, scheduled November 22, and Sergei Rachmaninoff, December 9 have been postponed until after January 1. Marvin McDonald, manager of the Atlanta All-Star Concert Series, announced yesterday.

The scheduled concert by Alec Templeton, pianist, November 25, will be moved to another building or postponed. Helen Knox Spain, vice president of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs, sponsors of the Templeton engagement, said last night.

Postponing of these concerts was necessitated by the recommendations due today against use of the municipal auditorium for public functions until after January 1, because of damages caused by the fire Monday night.

McDonald said new dates were being negotiated with Menuhin for some time in January and Rachmaninoff for sometime in March.

"These concerts will be given on the All-Star series this season," McDonald said. "They are being postponed and are not being cancelled."

Other scheduled shows and attractions to be affected at the auditorium include:

Georgia Elks Association, November 14-16; Georgia Colored Church, November 18-19; Al Raver, wrestling, November 20; Tiny Bradshaw dance orchestra, November 20; Boys' Club, November 23; Alec Templeton, pianist, Art Exhibit, November 22-27; Beau Arts Ball, November 26; Cat Clubs Show, November 28-30.

December shows:

Board Presses Auditorium Fire Inquiry

Workmen Busy Removing Charred Floors, Walls, Beams.

While a military board continued its probe into the cause of Monday night's fire, which razed a $300,000 portion of the municipal auditorium and destroyed military equipment valued at about $200,000, trucks and mopping squads of the city sanitary and construction departments yesterday were hauling charred floors, walls and beams from the burned section.

Scores of trucks were kept busy as preliminaries to repairing or reconstructing the fire-swept area were being pressed.

It is expected that the inquiring military board will file its report today. Previously, the board informed Adjutant General Marion Williamson that no evidence of sabotage has been uncovered, although it was at first suspected.

Fire Chief C. S. Styron, member of a special subcommittee named by the public buildings and athletic committee of council to make recommendations concerning emergency repairs, warned yesterday Atlantans "should be awake to the possibilities of sabotage."

His statement came as Fire Marshal M. H. Carter agreed there were no evidences of sabotage and expressed a belief that the fire started from a lighted cigarette. He explained the rapid spread of the flames by recalling that the old wooden floors were practically saturated with oil used in cleaning National Guardsmen's guns over a period of years.

Cardenas Acts For Settlement In Oil Dispute

Proposes Revisions of Laws Governing Petroleum Industry.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13.—(P)—President Lázaro Cardenas proposed tonight revisions of laws governing the petroleum industry in a move interpreted as designed to clear the way for a settlement with firms whose properties were expropriated March 18, 1938.

Aides of the President have said all along he was anxious to work out a final settlement of the expropriation compensation problem before he leaves office November 30.

The proposals to congress were designed chiefly, it appeared, to fortify the financial position of the industry, which has been showing a deficit.

In a message to congress, the President emphasized that the industry should operate on such a basis not only as to pay regular taxes to the government, but also to provide a return on the investment in the industry the government seized after charging the oil firms with refusing to abide by a supreme court decision in a wage dispute.

Bankruptcy Officials Can See Tax Returns

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Receivers and trustees in bankruptcy were authorized by presidential order today to examine federal income and other tax returns.

Treasury officials said that while other similar fiduciary officials already held this privilege, bankruptcy officers apparently had been omitted from the right by accident, and the new order was intended only to put bankruptcy officers on an equal basis with others.

Women Voters Seek Changes In Government

Pledge To Work for Drastic Reforms in State, County Units.

With pointed reference to the safeguarding of constitutional rights—freedom of speech, press and assembly—the Georgia League of Women Voters yesterday pledged itself to work for drastic changes in state and county governments including abandonment of the system of allocating revenues, elimination of the poll tax as a voting requirement, repeal of the county unit system, and establishment of a state-wide merit system for governmental personnel.

In directing attention to the safeguarding of constitutional rights, the league said this is "fundamental to the entire program."

Wide Program.
The league's program was adopted at the final session of a two-day meeting and calls for this action:

- 1—Establishment of a state-wide merit system for government personnel;
- 2—Development of a co-ordinated state and local tax system through scientific research procedure;
- 3—Establishment of a state equalization and collection board;
- 4—Enactment of a state law requiring counties and municipalities to adopt uniform accounting records for audit by a central state authority;
- 5—Elimination of allocating state revenue and creation of a scientific budget machinery;
- 6—Strengthening of representative government through elimination of the poll tax as a requirement for voting.

ment for voting, removal of the number from the ballot before it is cast, repeal of the county unit system, short ballot, home rule and permanent registration for municipalities;

Southern Economies.
The program also calls for a study of the removal of barriers to southern economic progress, elimination of freight rate differentials and parity dollars for agriculture.

The league elected Mrs. Fred E. Scanling of Atlanta as president to succeed Josephine Wilkins, who retired after holding the office six years.

Other officers chosen include Mrs. John Morris, first vice president; Miss Wilkins, second vice president; Mrs. Phillip Jackson, treasurer, and Christine Counts, secretary.

The new president resides at 1257 North Avenue, N. E., and has been a member of the Atlanta league for 12 years, during which she served four years as treasurer and a member of the board and the staff.

Besides her league duties she served as treasurer of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers for four years, was legislative chairman of the Atlanta P. T. A. council and education chairman of the Atlanta Woman's club.

Directors of the league are Jesse Daniel Ames, Mrs. M. J. Gatewood, Mrs. William J. Russell and Mrs. J. D. Thomas.

Still Believes He's Elected, Almazan Says

Waiting for Mexicans To Call Him Back, General Asserts.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Despite the United States' recognition of General Avila Camacho as President-elect of Mexico, General Juan Almazan said tonight he still considered himself the President-elect and was waiting for the people of Mexico to ask him to return there.

In an interview conducted through an interpreter, Almazan branded as "wholly unfounded and false charges by the present Mexican administration that I am tied up with the Axis power."

"My past record definitely shows that I have been the champion of democracy in Mexico and that for many years I have led the movement of close co-operation between Mexico and the United States," he said.

The general has been in this country since shortly after Mexico's presidential election.

The "situation" regarding the presidency, he said, was this: Camacho claimed 2,400,000 votes,

Coffin Empty At Funeral for Murdered Girl

Five Hundred Classmates Sing; Crowd Overflows Into Street.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Weeping women and children crowded St. Luke's Roman Catholic church today and others stood outside in a cold, drizzling rain as funeral services were conducted for 10-year-old Genevieve Connelly, who was slain and cremated in a furnace last week.

A draped, but empty coffin stood in the center aisle as the low requiem mass was sung. Five hundred of Genevieve's classmates from St. Luke's parochial school attended and at the mother's request sang one song, "Mother Dear, Pray for Me." Thomas Conroy, 38, superintendent of the Bronx apartment where the girl was slain, is held in connection with her death.

Atlanta's Expected Cold Is Delayed

The cold wave which Atlantans have been expecting for the last two days has stalled somewhere in the middle west, the United States Weather Bureau reported last night.

Its arrival is now scheduled for tomorrow morning, but only as a shadow of its former self. At first expected to send thermometers down to a shivery 26, it will do well to push them down to 32, according to bureau officials.

Today, according to the forecast, will be fair and colder, though not as cold as first expected. The morning's low will be around 38, and the afternoon's high 45. Yesterday's extremes were 50 and 47.

Syphilis Battle Being Won in Glynn County

In Three Years 'Bad Blood Wagon' Reduces Prevalence by Half.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Constitution Staff Writer.
BRUNSWICK, Ga., Nov. 13.—Glynn's county's famous "bad-blood wagon," the nation's first traveling syphilis clinic, has in the past three years brought about a 50 per cent reduction in the prevalence of syphilis among the age group most heavily infected, Dr. M. E. Winchester, county health commissioner, announced today.

When the "bad-blood wagon" first started touring the swamps and the pine-lands three years ago the incidence of syphilis among Negroes from 18 to 40 years of age was 41 per cent, or more than four times the national average, Dr. Winchester yesterday told a dozen of the nation's top-flight syphilologists, gathered here for a conference on evaluation of serodiagnostic tests for syphilis.

Reduced 50 Per Cent.

When in October the public health office here conducted blood tests on 1,288 Negro men in this general age group, the percentage of those showing positive reaction to tests had dropped to 20 per cent, or a total reduction of more than 50 per cent.

Dr. Winchester also reported that a three-year campaign to eradicate syphilis among the 500 Negroes dwelling on Sapelo Island, where a preliminary survey showed 26 per cent syphilitic, had resulted in the complete eradication of syphilis among that group.

"The results in Glynn county," Dr. Winchester said, "show what can be done among a somewhat fluctuating population, where there is always danger of infection being brought in from the outside by transients. The Sapelo Island results show what can be done when there is absolute control of the group under treatment, with no danger of outside infections. The county results indicate that syphilis can be greatly reduced, and the Sapelo program proves conclusively that under the most favorable circumstances for diagnosis and treatment, one of the world's most vicious diseases can be entirely eradicated."

Traveling Health Clinic.

Dr. Winchester also pointed out that with the reduction in the amount of syphilis control work necessary, the "bad-blood wagon" is now taking on the status of a portable public health office, from which various public health services, such as immunizations, instructions in prenatal care, child care, and general health are now conducted.

Commenting on the Glynn county reduction, Dr. H. H. Hazen, of the Howard University College of Medicine at Washington, D. C., said:

"Dr. Winchester's figures clearly show what can be accomplished by a health program which first receives the confidence of the people it is designed to help, and then carries on an unrelenting fight against the disease. It seems to illustrate clearly the efficiency of modern methods of treatment."

Doctors and their wives here for the meetings were guests of Judge Eustace Butts at an old-fashioned "low mull" at his estate on Blythe Island last night. Tonight they will be guests of the Glynn County Medical Association at a barbecue at Blue Heron Club on Hillary Island.

Wickard Invited To Speak Here

United States Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard has been invited to be guest of honor at a dinner in Atlanta December 6, it was announced yesterday at the State Department of Agriculture, Columbus. Robert S. Georgia's Commissioner of Agriculture, extended the invitation. If Wickard accepts, Roberts plans to have him speak to a large gathering of farmers.

The national secretary could stop in Atlanta on his way to a meeting of the National Association of Commissioners, Secretaries and Directors of Agriculture to be held in New Orleans December 9, 10 and 11, Roberts pointed out.

Judge Upholds Wife Who Saw Louis Fight

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 13.—(P) Domestic Relations Court Judge Camille Kelley admitted never saw a prize fight, but she vigorously upheld today the right of a Negro housewife who came into a small inheritance to use part of the money to see Joe Louis fight. The judge ordered the husband, charged with non-support, to contribute to his wife and children. He had complained his wife took part of the legacy to see the Louis bout, then "kicked me out."

French Call Government to Grave Session

Weygand Still Fails To Return From Colonies in Africa.

VICHY, France, Nov. 13.—(P)—An urgent session of the French government was called for tomorrow following a surprise cabinet session tonight.

Contrary to custom, no communiqué was issued and ministers declined to give any hint as to the important questions under consideration.

Political observers pointed out that this in all likelihood meant that the government had failed to resolve major problems before it. Simultaneously with the cabinet session, the government issued a communiqué denying what it called foreign rumors concerning high personalities in France's African colonies and French Indo-China.

(Refusal of General Maxime Weygand to return to Vichy Monday as expected, aroused speculation among foreign circles at Bern, Switzerland, who professed to see therein a stiffening attitude toward France's German and Italian conquerors.)

(Domestically, Japanese news agency, reported from Hanoi, French Indo-China, Tuesday night, that Admiral Decoux had resigned as governor-general because of difficulties created by a strong group in Saigon favoring the "free French" movement of General Charles De Gaulle.)

General Weygand, whose impending return to Vichy was announced recently, had not shown up tonight. (Here 12 words and the entire next paragraph were censored.)

All political observers in Vichy agreed the cabinet's discussions involved "grave problems." They also declared that relations between France and her conquerors had not improved as had been hoped at the time France agreed to "collaborate" with the Axis.

VISITOR WELCOMED—Vincent Sheean, author and famed newspaper correspondent, who spoke at Agnes Scott College last night, was met at the Municipal Airport yesterday by two enthusiastic Agnes Scott students, Virginia Clower, left, and Betty Stevenson, who couldn't wait to see the visiting lecturer.

British Destroy Half of Duce's Battle Fleet

naval aircraft for a blow credited with reducing the Italian battle line "almost to the point of insignificance." The admiralty said that as a result of this attack probably only three Italian battleships now remain effective.

"It is now known (after photographic reconnaissance) that one battleship of the Littorio class is so badly down by the bows that her forecastle is under water and has a heavy list to starboard and one battleship of the Cavour class has been beached with the stern up to and including the after turret, under water," the admiralty's communiqué said. "It is not yet possible to establish the fact with certainty, but it appears probable that a second battleship of the Cavour class also was severely damaged."

"In the inner harbor two cruisers are listed to starboard, surrounded by fuel oil, and two fleet auxiliaries are lying with their sterns under water."

Churchill Happy.

"The total strength of the Italian battle fleet was six battleships, two of the Littorio class, which had just been put into service, and four of the recently reconstructed Cavour class."

Prime Minister Churchill, in high good humor, hurried over to the house of commons and read the admiralty communiqué to the cheering members.

"The result of this action affects decisively the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean," he said. "The result also carries with it reactions to the naval situation in other parts of the globe. I feel sure the house will regard the results as highly satisfactory, and as reflecting the greatest credit on the admiralty, Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, the whole Mediterranean fleet and upon the pilots of the fleet air arm who, like their brothers of the Royal Air Force, continue to render their country service of the highest order."

Another admiralty communiqué described the engagement in the Straits of Otranto.

"During the night of November 11-12 a squadron of our light forces operating on the main line of Italian communications across the Straits of Otranto, between Italy and Albania, intercepted off the Albanian port of Valona an enemy convoy consisting of four supply ships escorted by two destroyers," the communiqué said.

"Of these enemy supply ships, one was sunk outright, two were set seriously afire and almost certainly sank and the fourth was damaged but succeeded in escaping under a smoke screen."

"Both escorting destroyers escaped at high speed under the cover of smoke, but one of them was hit and damaged. No damage or casualties were sustained by our forces."

The admiralty said it also was reported that a British submarine recently attacked a convoy of two supply ships escorted by a destroyer and that one ship of about 3,000 tons was sunk and the second certainly damaged and probably sunk. The locality was not stated.

The air attack at Taranto was the first successful major naval action where planes won a decisive victory over ships of the line. The aircraft faced concentrated shore fire in addition to a tremendous concentration of high angle guns. This battle may have a profound effect on future sea strategy.

The naval correspondent of the press association considered it more than likely that the attack was carried out by torpedo-carrying planes, pointing out that it was impossible that a modern battleship of the Littorio class, with special antibomb deck armor, could be holed so badly by ordinary bombs that the forecastle would be under water.

Naval Victory To Spur Hunt For Nazi Raider

Britain Able To Free Powerful Units To Catch Battleship.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(P)—The bombing of Taranto which Prime Minister Churchill yesterday announced crippled half of the Italian fleet, and is expected to release some powerful units of the British Mediterranean fleet to hunt down the German raider which may be a German pocket battleship, which has been active in the Atlantic. Only three ships in the British navy, the battle cruisers Hood, Renown and Repulse, are accounted fast enough and powerful enough to catch and defeat one of these 10,000-ton craft. Germany has two pocket battleships left, the Admiral Scheer and the Luetzow.

Churchill told the nation of the valiant death fight of the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay which, in mid-Atlantic, saved 30 out of a convoy of 38 ships from the guns of the great German raider November 5.

Churchill paid tribute to this "furious and heroic action."

Six more ships of the scattered convoy reached port today.

Greeks Seize New Series of Albanian Hills

British Bombers Attack Italian Ports and Oil Refineries.

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 13.—(P)—The Greek high command declared tonight that in "successful attacks" in the Pindus mountain region its troops had occupied a new series of hill tops on Albanian territory.

No more precise location of the counteroffensive was given, but a government spokesman had said earlier that the Greeks were moving forward rapidly in a mop-up of territory abandoned by the Italian invaders in the Pindus region and along the Greek west wing.

A British air communiqué issued from Greek headquarters told of new successful attacks by the RAF.

"Valona and Durazzo (Albanian ports) were again bombed by aircraft of the Royal Air Force. Long-range bombers successfully attacked oil refineries at Bari (Italian base across the Adriatic and west of Durazzo)."

"At Valona high explosive and incendiary bombs hit ammunition dumps, causing fires and explosions. Explosions still were continuing when our aircraft left 20 minutes later."

Greek commanders strengthened their lines along the mountainous Albanian frontier in the belief that Italian legions, whom they reported in at least momentary defeat, were reorganizing for a new invasion campaign.

One of the principal tasks before General Ubaldo Soddu, the new Italian commander, is replacement or rebuilding of the reportedly shattered Alpine division which the Greeks, the weather and terrain trapped in the Pindus mountain border region.

Five hundred Italian prisoners arrived here last night and others, including a surrendered Albanian company, were expected tonight or tomorrow.

Hitler Hopes To Attack U. S. Soon—Sheean

Famed Foreign Expert Deplores 'Slowness of Defense Program.'

By BETTY MATHIS.

England, engaged in the greatest one-sided fight of all time, is the only hope for the United States, in the light of present conditions in this country, according to Vincent Sheean, author of best sellers, foreign correspondent and world traveler.

"America is experiencing the most critical time, by far, in her history right now, but the American people, who don't seem to realize the danger, aren't particularly excited about it," he said, in an interview.

The tall, blond, former football player, who returned just a month ago from visits to Italy, France and England, spoke last night to a capacity audience at Agnes Scott College.

His lecture, titled "Personal Opinion," was a narrative of events in Europe since the German victory over France.

As a result of his observations in Europe, Sheean has reached the conclusion that America must multiply by three or four times her present rate of defense production if she hopes to escape the fate of all Europe.

"England is our only hope. As long as she holds out, we probably won't be attacked. But there is no doubt in my mind, or I think, in the minds of any of the American newspaper men in Europe, that we shall be attacked," he said. "I can't say when, or where, but I imagine it will be a simultaneous attack along our eastern shores and from the Orient. And it will come just as soon as it is possible for the Nazis to manage it."

"There will be no pause, after England falls, for as time goes on, we are building up our defenses. Hitler wants to make the push against America while we are still powerless to defend ourselves adequately."

All Aid to Britain.

Sheean is heartily in favor of sending all aid to Britain. But he is also in favor of drastically curtailing private production here if that is necessary to speed up defense.

"Why don't people, either in industry, or in the government, just say 'I won't build our motor cars next year. There are enough in this country. Instead, we will build planes, and other necessary machinery for defense, with the tools and skilled workers who are now making automobiles,'" he asked.

"When I first reached America, I was utterly amazed at the slowness of the defense program. I could not believe that we were doing our best. After all, America is supposed to be a nation of vast industrial capacity and of great ingenuity. We must utilize every ounce of our resources and resourcefulness, if we are to escape the fate of Europe.

"Aside of the danger from attack from without, there is also a very real danger from within. Wide political differences could spell disaster, just as they did in France. Lack of confidence in our political leadership would mean ruin, just as it did in France," he said.

Trial of Lee In Floggings Is Begun Here

Legal Tilts Over Testimony Highlight Opening Day.

Legal tilts over alleged "prejudicial and inflammatory" testimony offered by the state's star witness yesterday highlighted the beginning of the trial of Floyd I. Lee, charged on five counts of participating in the flogging of five men in 1937 and 1938.

Lee, alleged leader of the East Point Ku Klux Klan's "wrecking crew," pleaded innocent when the case was called by Judge E. E. Pomeroy in Fulton superior court.

W. C. Bishop, who confessed being at the scene of many of the whippings in south Fulton county, yesterday swore that Lee was present when P. S. Toney, Bert Harris, Louis Brown and Joe Otwell were lashed. Bishop, Toney and B. A. Raines were state's witnesses during the day.

Bishop, after naming Lee as leader of the floggers, said Lee was present when Henry Cawthon, convicted of flogging, attempted to get him to change his testimony in order to win a new trial. He declared he refused.

H. A. Allen and John H. Harrison, attorneys for Lee, moved for a mistrial when this statement was made, claiming it was "prejudicial and inflammatory." Solicitor General John A. Boykin and E. E. Andrews and Daniel Duke, his assistants, contended it was important to the case.

Judge Pomeroy ruled the testimony out but he declined to declare a mistrial.

Described Events. Toney, Scottsdale textile worker, again described the events when night riders took him from his home, posing as "state officers," and carried him to a point near East Point to be lashed with a heavy whip.

He was whipped, the night rider told him, because he was a "CIO organizer," which he denied.

The state has more than a score of witnesses still to testify and the defense has as many or more. It is expected the trial will take several days.

One count against Lee, that of assault and battery on E. K. Ramage, was dropped yesterday when the case began. Ramage, the prosecution said, is in Texas and refused to come back. Lee is charged with assault and battery on Toney, Brown, Otwell, Harris and J. W. Wilkes.

Five of 17 members of the East Point Klan who were indicted in connection with the floggings have already been tried and convicted.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filaments that help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

R. B. Nations Jr., N. W. Curbow, L. D. Roberts, J. L. Richardson and R. H. McCoy. Back row, left to right, R. B. Croker, Jim H. Hogan, J. O. Maner Jr., Charles E. Manning, C. W. Woodbury and C. A. Martin. The trial is expected to last several days.

Prison Records Are in Muddle, Witness Says

Charge Levelled at Some State Camps at Glover Trial.

Record books at some state prison camps are so mixed up that it is impossible to obtain any accurate breakdown of camp expenses, James Finley, formerly a special investigator of the State Highway Department, testified yesterday in the United States circuit court.

Finley was one of the witnesses called by United States Attorney Lawrence S. Camp as the government's case against J. C. (Bugs) Glover, suspended chief of state convict forces, neared the close of its second week.

Glover is under a 20-count indictment charging use of the mails to defraud in connection with the construction of three state-financed houses on land he bought adjacent to prison camps in Dade, Dawson and Miller counties.

Hired by Patten. Finley said he was hired last July by L. L. Patten, highway board member, to investigate charges of irregularities in the construction of wardens' houses; to check on the manner in which clothing and transportation are turned over to convicts on release, and also to investigate the methods employed in purchasing camp supplies.

Among the wardens' homes he visited is the one Glover is accused of having built in Dawson county, and another at Soperton, which Finley declared is built on land leased from the family of Jim Gillis, formerly a member of the highway board.

He was sent to Soperton to investigate charges that South Georgia highway board members used state funds to build fishponds for themselves, a charge he said he found was without foundation.

Irritated by Questions. Irritated by the persistent cross-questioning of Defense Attorney Paul Carpenter, Finley first hesitated when asked what business he was engaged in today, then snapped:

"Sitting here in court, answering your foolish questions." He later said he had been employed in a circuit business office, but had to leave to appear in court.

Another witness to appear yesterday was R. E. Lashley, of Cairo, brother-in-law of Governor Rivers. The Highway Department leased land from Lashley for construction of a camp and warden's house, but Lashley said it was with the understanding that when the camp was abandoned all buildings would be removed.

Construction of temporary buildings on leased land, as in the case of Gillis and Lashley, is in accord with the custom and practice of the highway board, the government contends. The defense states that the houses built on land purchased by Glover are simple and inexpensive, and fall within the definition of "temporary."

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 14, 1940.

Opportunity in Disaster

There can be nothing but regrets at the disastrous fire which visited the city auditorium. At the same time Atlanta may be thankful that the main auditorium, apparently, was undamaged and that there will be no need to cancel any of the excellent concerts and other attractions booked there this winter.

It is regrettable that there was such loss in army equipment stored in the armory portion of the building. Also, once again Atlanta must wait for completion of the spot of civic beauty which will finally emerge through the combination of the new Hurt park and the auditorium front as it ultimately will be.

However, there is possibility of great gain to the city as a result of the fire. If the front section of the building, now destroyed, is rebuilt with full consideration of all the possibilities for the city, Atlanta may gain immeasurably.

Atlanta has long been a favorite site for conventions. Many which would have come here, however, have been unable to do so because of the lack of proper exhibit space adjacent to the auditorium. Conventions are expensive undertakings for their promoters and many expect to reimburse themselves for these costs by the rental of exhibit space to commercial and industrial concerns.

Atlanta should rebuild the damaged auditorium in such manner as to provide ample exhibit space and all other facilities desired by any convention which may contemplate making this city its meeting place.

If this is done and at the same time the facade of the auditorium designed as a cohesive part of the background to the Hurt park the fire of Monday night may yet prove a blessing in disguise.

A new Navy decree forbids reserve officers to embark on the high seas of matrimony. The eager bride who expected sailing orders will kindly stand by.

Sabotage, Undoubtedly

When explosions and other disasters come to American powder plants, munitions works, or other vital industries at the rate of three or four a day there can be no reasonable doubt that the hand of the saboteur is behind at least some of it.

With monotonous regularity authorities announce, after each such disaster, that a thorough investigation will be made but that there is no direct evidence of sabotage. Naturally, whatever direct evidence might be there is wiped out by the explosion itself. There must be, however, some circumstantial evidence to connect agents of foreign powers with the too frequent violence. And men have been hanged on circumstantial evidence. It is in many cases the most damning of all.

These disasters mean but one thing. That is, regardless of our technical neutrality the war has already been brought to these shores, the subversive forces have gone beyond Fifth Column propaganda and begun Fifth Column attack.

In the FBI the United States possesses an investigatory body of excellent record and unsurpassed ability. It may be that this force and other law enforcement or protective bodies need enlargement if the nation is to be adequately protected. Protection against such outrages is certainly an important part of national defense and it is up to the federal government to see that every precaution necessary to prevent repetition of these disasters is taken. It is as necessary to protect our essential defense industries and the men who work within them as it is to protect our shores. Invasion is as much invasion if it comes by secretly placed bomb or by air, sea, or land attack.

The polite kidding of the natives by Nazi troops in occupied lands is giving way to undisguised pillage. They came to scoff and remain to prey.

"Unity" is the watchword of this hour. From the rock-bound Republican coast of Maine to the sunny Democratic slopes of the Pacific, from the border to the Gulf, we stand—one nation, one flag, one people.

The Real Importance

Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, but now in this country, gave an extensive interview to Louis M. Lyons, a reporter on the Boston Globe. After publication of the interview Ambassador Kennedy objected, saying he had distinctly specified that his conversation with Lyons was "off the record." Lyons states that he understood only certain portions of Kennedy's remarks were not for publication, that he scrupulously refrained from mentioning these and felt at perfect liberty to use those portions of the interview which were published.

It is unlikely that an experienced reporter would violate confidences extended to him by any man in public life. The reputation of the American press in this regard is almost, if not quite, unsullied.

What is of real importance in the incident however is the fact that Kennedy did voice the sentiments attributed to him in the Lyons interview. The ambassador has not denied any of the things quoted, confining his protest to the mere assertion that they were not intended for publication. Many of the opinions expressed by Kennedy are fully in line with his record and others are merely logical extensions of opinions hitherto voiced.

Kennedy is undoubtedly an apostle of appeasement, urging that the best thing for this country to do is to make friends with Hitler's Germany, abandon Britain to her fate and make the best of a totalitarian-controlled world. In other words he is in full agreement with Charles Lindbergh.

Reporter Lyons has performed a distinct service to the nation in making plain the views of the man holding the important post of ambassador to Great Britain. It is generally believed that Kennedy does not wish to return to London. It would probably be much better if this country were represented there by a man who viewed the world situation the same way that ninety per cent of the American people view it. That is, with full sympathy to the British cause, with full determination to render whatever material aid we can to the sole remaining champion of democracy in Europe and at the same time to make our own defenses impregnable against any possible eventuality.

Normalcy returns to radio. Where, for a while, it was in the candidate's voice, soap is now back in the commercial plug.

The City Vote

An interesting analysis of the vote in the recent presidential election, carried in the Shreveport (La.) Times, shows that President Roosevelt owed his re-election largely to the voters of the big cities. Outside of the south the rural areas, as a whole, voted Republican majorities.

In fact, it is pointed out, had it not been for the cities, Wendell Willkie would have carried nine states whose combined electoral vote would have given him the presidency. Those nine states are New York, Illinois, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Wisconsin, Ohio, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

This, of course, is not excessively important. National elections in the United States are decided by popular vote and the vote of the urban dweller is, rightfully, of exactly the same weight in deciding the outcome as that of his rural fellow-citizen.

However, it cannot be denied that the nation would be in a healthier condition, from the political standpoint, if the party sentiment was not so definitely divided between class and occupational lines.

The wealthier people, those whose incomes depend upon stock and investment dividends were, most of them, for Willkie while the great middle class, and the "lower third," were predominantly for Roosevelt.

There will be no realization of the America of which lovers of democracy have dreamed until there is better understanding, better cooperation for the greater good, between wealth and poverty, between the labor of the cities and the farmers of the open country.

It was lately established at Guam that it is possible to have a South Seas typhoon without starring Miss Dorothy Lamour.

Editorial Symposium

THE GREEK FRONT.

"Current, unexpected successes of Greek forces resisting the Italian invasion are parallel with early successes of the Finns in resisting the Russian invasion," says the MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL, which feels future trend of the war depends, in large measure, on the quantity of aid Britain can give in the Mediterranean and Aegean seas. And the NEW YORK POST declares that "Considering the limited degree of English help and the fact that Turkey, which may ultimately decide to join Greece against the Axis, has so far clung to a neutral policy of nonintervention, the power of the Greek military forces in fighting off the invasion has been miraculous."

The PORTLAND OREGONIAN, however, sees "little to be cheerful" about the Greek successes, and explains by saying that "We cannot conceive of a more dangerous situation than would result if the Greeks were to defy mathematics and the probabilities by casting the Italians into the Adriatic. That would be most satisfying to the spirit, but it would only mean that Hitler's armies would move down." And the LOS ANGELES TIMES believes "This whole affair is beginning to look like an elaborate feint, to cover the development of an attack somewhere else, but where it may fall has everybody guessing."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

JOE KENNEDY SPEAKS HIS MIND WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The history of American diplomacy is replete with fantastic incidents but a good many State Department officials agree that the recent interview given by Joseph P. Kennedy to the Boston Globe comes near to winning the prize. Kennedy, happy in his shirt sleeves, seems to have confided to the Boston Globe reporter, Louis Lyons, most of the ideas he has been industriously spreading in private for some time past, tempering only his defeatism.

On the surface, the interview was an announcement that Kennedy was setting off on a personal crusade to limit American involvement in the European war. Kennedy boasted he had already seen many "publishers, senators, and congressmen," and said he planned to see many more, including "California publishers" who, it takes little insight to guess, was William Randolph Hearst. By rallying such great powers to his standard, Kennedy predicted he would succeed.

But the interview's real heart, the central Kennedy ideas, were to be found in the obiter dicta, which he prefaced with the modest assertion, "I know more about the European situation than anybody else in this country." Among these obiter dicta were:

(1) An assertion that "democracy is all done. Democracy is finished in England."
(2) An explanation that admission of the Labor party leaders to the British cabinet "means national Socialism is coming out of it."
(3) A statement that he had supported the President as a sort of political paragon, expert at soothing "the have-nots," who "have got to take it" in the hard times ahead.
(4) A judgment that Montagu Norman and Hjalmar Horace Greeley Schacht were the greatest bankers in the world, together with semi-sarcastic reminiscence of a time when the great Norman confessed that Schacht was even greater.
(5) A remark that "Lindbergh isn't crazy either, you know!"

JOE AND MONTAGU There was a good deal more, including such diplomatic potpourri as the Queen Elizabeth has "more brains" than the entire British cabinet, but the above should be sufficient to establish Kennedy's general drift. There should be no mistake about his general drift. It is not merely a matter of less belated American policy. If he has been correctly quoted and meant what he said, his drift is toward appeasement, open and unashamed.

It is a serious thing to suggest that a public man holds theories and has inclinations which 90 per cent of the American people firmly reject. But, unhappily, Joe Kennedy's record speaks for itself. The most revealing passage in his interview was the reverential reference to Norman, the sly, secretive, compromising governor of the Bank of England who, far from being the greatest banker in the world, was actually a mediocre money lender. English appeasement started with Norman's liaison with Dr. Schacht, an international slickster far cleverer and more successful than Ivar Kruger. It was Schacht who persuaded Norman that the "moderate" Nazis could be "dealt with." It was Norman and his associates in the city of London who passed on the same conviction to Chamberlain, Sir John Simon, Sir Horace Wilson and the other appeasers in English politics. And it was this very politico-financial group that took Joe Kennedy to its bosom the instant he arrived in England.

FOR WHOM IS HE SPEAKING? From the beginning to the end of his service Kennedy reflected the views of the appeasers in his dispatches. He also attempted, in the face of terrible contrary evidence of Hitler's onward march, to convince the President that these views were correct, and to bring this country into the appeasement line.

During the final war crisis, for example, when the President sent messages to Hitler and President Moscicki of Poland to urge arbitration of their differences, Kennedy angrily called the State Department that what the President really ought to have urged was a Polish fold-up. When war broke out, he telephoned the President, in a state closely approaching hysteria, to announce the "end of the world." From that day he sang on the same shrill note for all but one brief instant.

Indications of appeasement-mindedness are numerous all through Kennedy's Globe interview. The incredible reference to the English labor leaders, for instance, betrays the very "pocketbook psychology" that animated men like Norman when they first sponsored appeasement policy. The justification of Colonel Lindbergh implies approval of Lindbergh's chief plea, for a deal with the dictators, the essence of appeasement. Also indicative is a happy anticipation of trade with a victorious Germany "after the war," not quoted above. But there is no need to pile up the evidence. It is more important to grasp the meaning of what Kennedy has said and what he plans.

In the interview he endorsed aid to Britain as "insurance" during our rearmament, and spoke of the need for rapid rearmament in such glowing terms as to recall his ambition to lead the defense commission. His main emphasis, however, was on his crusade for "peace." Seen against its background, this personal crusade of Kennedy's is obviously a potential front, behind which Kennedy and the men who go along with him may be able to start the first articulate, unblinking movement for appeasement the country has yet seen.

Ambassador Kennedy's subsequent disavowal of the Lyons interview, in which he said that he had "talked off the record," brought the following statement from the Boston Globe: "The Globe regrets that Ambassador Kennedy takes exception to publication of the interview. It was Mr. Lyons' understanding that he was at liberty to use any of the remarks in the long interview in Boston, except for those which Mr. Kennedy specified as 'off the record,' and these, of course, were not touched upon in the published interview."

Keeping in Touch With the World

Young friend of mine listens regularly to those "news reports" broadcast daily over the radio. It occurred to him he could write one himself after hearing so many. Here is the result of his imagination:

"Today, Tuesday, November 12, 1940, we bring you our usual nightly broadcast, to keep you informed of the latest developments abroad. We take you to the New York studios of the XYZ broadcasting system, to hear the latest bulletins, and also the reports from XYZ's correspondents in foreign capitals. First, a bulletin flashed through our news service from Rome, Italy, dated Monday, November 11, it reads:

"The Italian high command has just reported that at exactly 2:43 p. m. the enemy was sighted on the Egyptian border; a major action ensued involving five Italian soldiers and a vastly superior number of the enemy. Our forces opened fire, and in the face of stubborn resistance, retreated heroically. The enemy only managed to capture four prisoners, and their casualties are known to have been far heavier. That concludes the bulletin, and now for the latest reports, we take you to London. Go ahead London."

"This . . . is London, at 2 minutes past midnight. Harry Lassoo speaking. The high command has just reported that a small Italian force was discovered on the Egyptian frontier, and according to all reports, they are still running. One Italian boot and a piece of spaghetti were taken prisoner."

28th Peace

Offer of Month

"The main news at the moment here is the peace offer made recently by Adolf Hitler. This is the 28th offer in the last month, and we are told that the terms are the following:

"That Adolf Hitler take over Gibraltar, Malta and South Africa, and that the British Empire shall keep all its other possessions, but that a (quote) 'reasonable (tourist) number of German tourists be stationed in all colonies to assure proper treatment of the native populations.' Needless to say, this offer has received the closest attention in diplomatic circles here, although no comment has as yet been made. It has been stated unofficially, however, that the British government will formally ignore these proposals in the face of the 10 more offers expected in the near future. This is Harry Lassoo returning you to New York."

pected in the near future. This is Harry Lassoo returning you to New York."

"This New York again. We now take you to Berlin, Germany. But before that, here is a bulletin just handed to me, dated yesterday, from Rome, Italy."

"Four hours ago," it says, "it was stated by the enemy that they were conquering Italy stronger. The truth is, however, that the forces of Il Duce retreated in a lion-like manner, in the face of heavy odds. This retreat being a major triumph and a strategic victory."

"Now XYZ takes you to Berlin, Germany. Go ahead Berlin."

"Hello XYZ, this is Fritz Sauerkraut speaking from Berlin. Today we were told that the Italian soldiers scored a major victory over the badly-led and oppressed British forces in Egypt. This is further conclusive proof of the Axis' unquenchable strength throughout the world."

"In the air war, the German high command is reported to have reported that (quote): Today we sent 260 heroic German bombers over enemy territory. The raids were successful, and the enemy lost a number of bombers. In spite of bad flying weather over the British capital, the enemy made two cowardly attacks on the Berlin kindergarten for backward babies, but the bombs missed their mark, falling into an airplane factory near by (unquote)."

"Today the Fuehrer launched his last peace appeal to the British people, in which he pointed out the futility of carrying on the present war, which was started by Churchill and his Jewish associates, who were entirely responsible for the unprovoked and cowardly attack on Greater Germany by Poland."

"In the sea war, it was reported that the enemy lost 20,000,000 tons of neutral shipping last week, and the figure of ships sunk since the beginning of the war has now topped the 180,000,000 mark. According to the reports available, the British had 150,000,000 tons of shipping at the outbreak of hostilities."

"It has now definitely been established that the Spanish passenger liner 'Libertad' was sunk by an American submarine under orders from the British propaganda ministry to infer to the world that the Nazi methods of warfare were ruthless. This is Fritz Sauerkraut returning you to XYZ in New York."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(The views expressed here are Mr. Pegler's own.)

Strange NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The collaboration of Harold Ickes and Harry Hopkins with Kelly and Hague in the late campaign of the party of humanity has been noted and approved by a slight plurality, along with the mutuality of Fiorello La Guardia and the once abhorrent Mr. Flynn. These associations were equally embarrassing to all concerned, and the Little Flower's shame was such that in a moment of angry self-reproach he snatched his own conscience by the necktie and tried to throttle the small, still voice.

Yet, for the record, it should be noted that there were other alliances hardly less incongruous and that we seem to be developing here, in our two-party system, a condition somewhat like that which existed in France until Hitler came along and unified the funny race.

Of those who favored the candidacy of Wendell Willkie this voter, at least, has come to realize since the campaign ended that he found himself yanking at the covers in the company of some types with whom he would not be found dead, much less in bed. It was unpleasant to receive letters of encouragement from malignant anti-Semites and to be called "one of us" by smug and stuffy individuals who obviously never did a lick of work in their lives and have strong ideas about the lower classes, indorsing my work "against unions."

Crosses One crazy man who reads Hitler and We Bear Streicher, and doubtless sleeps with a gun under his pillow, wrote to warn me of some foul international plot against my life and to assure me that my assassination would be avenged by the knights of some secret order. I had given no indication of any sympathy with his hallucinations, but he was against Roosevelt as a "tool" of the devils who dance in his own head, and therefore favored Roosevelt's opponents, including me.

A file of this correspondence, which I threw away from day to day, would be an interesting historical keepsake, but I am no librarian, and posterity probably will be better off without it.

But the lines crossed and re-crossed in a great tangle of confused animosities and purposes which must have placed many others in very uncomfortable society.

Several Catholic clergymen came out for Willkie, and thus found themselves on the same side with John L. Lewis, who, unquestionably, now, as before, has the support of the Communist element in the CIO. If the Communists voted for Willkie they were ingrates, for they owed much to the New Deal, and if they didn't they let down the man who is and has been their man in the American labor movement, although he is not a Communist but only a free-state dictator himself.

On the Roosevelt side there were strong supporters who had defended Lewis against the charge of dictatorship and association with the Bolos, but now denounced him and hollered loud that the Communists were for Willkie because Lewis was. One day Lewis was all right, and it was dirty Girdler propaganda to say that he had any truck with the Muscovites, but when he went over to Willkie he was a traitor and a tool of Big Joe.

Ingrates Or Worse

It was not pleasant to be on John L. Lewis' side, for my suspicions have been confirmed since, namely, that he had to go with the Communists who are his strength, who were quitting Roosevelt because the President is arming for war or defense, contrary to the party line from Moscow. If the Communists were on Willkie's side they were not only ingrates but, much worse, were temporarily at least, comrades of the middle class and big and little business and many of the religious people and the anti-Semites, who, to a man, judging from their propaganda, must have voted against the President.

Then, in New York, we discovered on the platform of one of the President's rallies Mr. Genaro Pope, the publisher of the ripest and most profitable Italian press in the United States, a political padrone of the Italian Duce over thousands of Americans of Italian descent, and one who has won with juvenile pride the honors received from the commander in chief of the fearless invincibles of Guadalajara and Greece. Mr. Pope is a Tammany man, as well as a Mussolini man, and in a terrible hour he found it necessary to indorse for a third term the man who accused his Duce of stabbing a stricken neighbor in the back.

It is going to take some time to comb ourselves out.

heard the voices of our correspondents in London and Berlin, and the latest reports from New York. We wish to remind our listeners that the broadcast was not transcribed from our program which was on the air at this same time last night."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

"EXCLUDING THE SOLID SOUTH" Certain political writers who had repeated a phrase, "excluding the solid south," in their political variations.

The south long has been used to being excluded from equality in tariffs and freight rates. Not until the present Democratic administration was there any effort made to give the south something approximating fair treatment. And not until the present administration came to power was it possible for the south to make any dent in the selfish and vicious freight rates and tariffs by which eastern industry had, by virtue of political dominance, kept down industrial development in the south.

It now appears the south has come to have the balance of power in national elections. This has come about through a curious turn in the trends of politics growing out of the past eight years of campaigning. Or, perhaps one might say, out of the past four years. In the recent election Wendell Willkie had an edge, often not very great, in the rural and small-town areas of the east. Mr. Roosevelt had a margin of about 2,000,000 votes, "excluding the solid south." Most of this was supplied by cities over 400,000 in population.

The south, heretofore, has voted about as have the less urban sections of the east and middle west. In this past election it was the south, plus the urban sections of the east, which joined to give Mr. Roosevelt his tremendous victory. It was a victory greater than that scored over Mr. Hoover in 1932.

It is quite possible the south and the urban east, as represented in congress, will be unable to join on legislation. The union is a new one, growing out of political preferences. Be that as it may, if the lineup remains the same four years hence, the south will retain the balance of power.

This should mean the south will be able to continue its fight to escape the fate of being the economic slave of the industrial and financial east. The politicians already have seen the south's stronger position. It will be interesting to watch.

SOME VIEW WITH ALARM It is true that every city with a population of more than 400,000 (Cincinnati excepted) voted for Mr. Roosevelt.

Some of the eastern political writers are attempting to prove the south in unholly company because this urban vote which was joined with that of the solid south.

This is entirely fanciful. It will disappear or not disappear in the next election, depending upon the political realities of 1944. The writers who pursue that subject would attempt to say, if one follows their reasoning, that any city less than 400,000 is a bucolic, pastoral and rural area. The cities of the south are urban, even though they do not have (New Orleans excepted) the required 400,000 population figures in the Bureau of Census reports. The willy-nilly argument that any city of more than 400,000 is urban and those of less than 400,000 are rural is specious.

It is an effort to say that the rural south joined with the industrial east to defeat Mr. Willkie. This is only partially true. Mr. Roosevelt had a slight edge in some sections of the rural east. He even gained in Maine and in New England generally. And New England, where he got more votes than in 1936, is the dominant rural section of the east.

Industrial workers in cities of less than 400,000 voted for Mr. Roosevelt. The farmers of the south voted for him. Their tobacco and cotton problems are not those of the farmers of the east.

The effort to make out an unholy alliance between rural, the south and the industrial east will not stand up.

And no matter how hard the boys figure with the phrase, "excluding the solid south," the cities of 400,000 and those less than 400,000, like the south, are a part of the nation.

And the cities of more than 400,000 are just as much a part of America as a tenant farm and are a part of the problem. And it is impossible to classify all cities of less than 400,000 as "rural."

MOANING AT THE BARS

The prospect is interesting. It also possesses amusing sidelights. At one of the better bars around town on the day following the election, a gentleman with a Willkie button on his lapel said, very sorrowfully:

"The worst mistake we ever made was in not letting the south go its way in 1861. They have sure enough ruined us in 1940."

Another interesting sidelight is that, at the time of the American convention of the bar association, a well-known Georgia jurist was surprised, one day, to have a voice over the telephone in his New York hotel room say that Mr. Wendell Willkie wished to speak to him.

He was dubious, but, when the next voice came on, it was Mr. Willkie.

"Mr. Willkie," he said, "I have learned through a fellow lawyer from the south that you are in New York and that your judgment may be trusted. I want to ask you, in your judgment, it would be worth my while to make a campaign in the south, particularly in Georgia and Tennessee?"

The Georgia jurist, still surprised, said in substance:

"I must in all candor tell you this, Mr. Willkie. I think you will get a good vote but that you have absolutely no chance to carry Georgia. I am not too well informed as to Tennessee, but in view of the fact that the organization and sentiment of the state is overwhelmingly Democratic, I do not believe it worth while to campaign there."

The word of the Georgia jurist, given at the time the Willkie board of strategy was in session deciding on a southern speaking campaign, caused the board to call off a tentative speaking engagement throughout the south.

The south remains in the Union. If the boys now wish to exclude it, we are sorry.

The Winning Team Develops the Spirit of a Winner Long Before the Big Game

By ROBERT QUILLEN

American people are afraid. Some protect themselves by refusing to think; some fool themselves by talking big; but the others, willing to face the truth, live in fear and dread of what may come. The chief cause of this fear is bewilderment. People don't know what to do or what they can do or should do. They feel helpless and useless.

In times of disaster, the people who give way to panic are the ones who have no duties and do not know what to do. The trained ones or the natural leaders, knowing what must be done, are too busy to be afraid.

To sit and do nothing, while danger approaches, strains our morale cruelly and unnecessarily.

Officially we are doing something. We are preparing for defense. The defensive is a passive attitude. It means waiting for a blow. It means trying to cover the body with the hands while being whipped. It means taking it—enduring—holding out until the attack is repulsed.

If invaders come, soon or late, we shall defend ourselves; if fifth columnists and spies try to cripple us, we shall defend ourselves.

But that is not enough to save democracy or to save our souls. Our people—our whole people—must have something to do, some plan to work by, some goal to achieve. We must quit being passive and become aggressive, dynamic, vital, eager, enthusiastic.

We need experts to plan propaganda for the teaching of domestic race and its blessings, both here at home in the Americas and in all the world. Our children and our aliens must be given the vision our forefathers had.

We need an organization and trained men by the thousand to develop new sources of vital raw materials in South America.

We need to root out our national faults—to destroy crime and corrupt political machines; to clear out slums and eradicate disease and stop the breeding of morons.

Georgia's Debt Will Be Paid, Glass Talmadge Says

Many Creditors May Have To Wait Without Interest, He Warns.

WEST POINT, Ga., Nov. 13.—(P)—Governor-Elect Eugene Talmadge asserted today Georgia's present debt would not be repudiated, but he warned many who have sold to the state probably would have to wait for their money—and without interest.

He addressed members of the West Point Lions Club and 150 guests.

Reiterating a promise of no sales tax as long as he is governor, Talmadge declared "If the people of Georgia will stand behind me we will fire three and keep one of all state office-holders, and in that way get Georgia out of debt and back to its rightful place, free from red tape and free of so many of the 'patriots for revenue only'."

The speech was highlight of the annual luncheon tendered by the Lions club each November in honor of Boston and New York capitalists assembling here in stockholders' meeting.

Legislators and judges of both Georgia and Alabama were guests.

Mr. Prosperoni has the unusual distinction of serving on two Conservatory faculties at once, teaching at the Brenau Conservatory, and on Wednesdays and Saturdays at the Georgia Conservatory and Music Center. This noted Italian baritone studied at the Royal Conservatory in Rome, Colon Theater in Buenos Aires, National Theater in Havana, and with the Chicago and Boston Opera Companies. It is with a feeling of pride that the Georgia Conservatory adds Mr. Prosperoni's name to their growing list of talented and able teachers. ### Muses on Faces Of Virtuosi Of The Bull Fiddle

There's a slang word, or words, "poker face." Recently "dead pan" has become preferred. In the movies Ned Sparks exemplifies it.

But I believe I could round up a dozen virtuosi of the double bass viol, popularly known as the bull fiddle or the dog house, and exhibit at least six dead pans, which would make Sparks look as vivacious as a high school girl trying for a hit with the boys.

For Exhibit No. 1, I would like to offer the spanker of the dog house in the popular orchestra of Graham Jackson, the Negro pianist, accordionist, organist and what not. I do not know this musician's name, but I watched him with fascination at a party not long ago.

I have watched Heifetz and Elman play the violin and neither betrayed by any change of facial expression the slightest interest in what they were doing. Their fingers preceded that. In plenty.

But this double bass artist was an ebony image by comparison. Graham's fingers might be battering the ivories faster than the eye could follow while he crouched over the keyboard and emitted low moans of ecstasy. The clarinetist might be writhing with emotion and the guitarist going to town.

But this imperturbable plucker of the dog house strings just stood there and plucked. His left hand slid up and down and his right hand snapped the sheepgut. His timing was perfect, his tones magnificent. But evidently his thought was far, far away. Perhaps he was floating in a canoe on a moonlit lake. Perhaps attending a barbecue and inhaling the aroma of well-done pig meat. His fingers were there and on the job, but his soul was elsewhere.

Most manipulators of the bass viol I have seen are like that. And why not? Nobody loves them except their mothers. They are as necessary to harmony and rhythm as a foundation is to a skyscraper, but who ever looks at a foundation. I do not think they are sour on the world. I think they just don't care a cuss.

Touch Them Not.

Not so many of the old covered bridges remain in Georgia. I know a few, not many miles from Atlanta. Over creeks, not rivers. Highway department builds fine new bridges of steel and concrete, with new approaches. And tears down the old covered bridges, a few yards up or down stream.

Why not let them remain? Bar them off from traffic, for safety's sake, in case some nut might want to use them. But preserve them as relics of the past.

Why were they roofed over? To preserve the floors from the weather, of course. Why do you put a roof over your porch? Or do you?

Used to be speed warnings on those covered bridges. "Not Over a Walk." Sporty drivers of sporty horses, clattering over at 12 m. p. h. might cause damage. I can remember anything about trucks of "Over Five Tons."

Gloomy spots, those old covered bridges. Loose planks under the buggy wheels, clattering and complaining. Holes in the shingle roof, letting in the sun, in streaks of light and darkness. Something eerie about a covered bridge. Like a tunnel. Always glad to get out of it.

But they built them sturdily. Highway engineer tells me he has seen several torn away and their main timbers were as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar. Sturdy oak—or the grand old heart of the yellow leaf pine. Good for another hundred years or so. Timbers which would dull a saw or defy a nail.

I'm not such an idolator of the past. I'd want old covered bridges on Route 3, or Route 31, or any other route on the highway maps. But I do think it would be fine to leave them alone—because the new bridge usually has a better approach—as monuments to the era of buggies and spring wagons and side-saddles. That wouldn't cost anything.

Editor Jack Hilton of the Banks County Journal realizes his position in national journalism. Says he:

"The daily papers and radio have already informed you who was elected president, so no use for a weekly paper to waste space on that."

Mr. Hilton also sets forth the situation of a publisher who becomes careless about official authority of news sources. Again I quote:

"Same person who failed to sign their name to the letter, writes us that a woman, giving the name, owns a bull that took first prize at a fair. Suppose the woman has no bull, and she comes on us about printing about her bull, when she has no bull, and we can not show her our authority for printing about her bull, where are we? If you want anything printed in this paper, sign your name to your letter."

Roosevelt Sees 'True Strength' In U. S. 'Union'

Pledges To Work With Those Who Support Americanism.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(P)—A pledge "to work shoulder to shoulder with all who place true Americanism above all other considerations" was President's answer today to the thousands of men and women who had congratulated him on his re-election.

In particular, he said, messages from those who did not vote for the administration "reflect a spirit of national unity in essential things." Describing these communications as "most welcome," the President added: "In union we shall find our true strength." Telegrams and letters of congratulation have been piling up at the White House since last Tuesday's balloting, and extra clerks were required to handle them. Since it was impossible for Mr. Roosevelt to reply personally to all of them, he responded through a formal statement.

"To all who have sent their greetings," he said, "I give this assurance of gratitude and heartfelt appreciation. In acknowledging these pledges of loyal support and full co-operation in forward-looking interests of the nation, I pledge anew my determination to work shoulder to shoulder with all who place true Americanism above all other considerations."

WILLKIE MAY PLAN CAREER AS WRITER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(P)—An impression prevailed in Republican quarters today that Wendell L. Willkie is planning a career as a writer and speaker on public events, to follow a bent which he enjoys and to lend force to his leadership of the Republican party in the four years to come.

Although the defeated Republican presidential nominee has yet to come to a final decision, his friends here expect him to settle down on or near his Indiana farms, contribute regularly to the magazines and emerge from time to time for speaking trips.

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communications must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

PEGLER SHOULD BURY POLITICAL HATCHET.

Editor, Constitution: I have just finished reading, for the second time, Westbrook Pegler's column "Fair Enough" in today's Constitution. In the face of the nationwide move for national unity, I am surprised at Mr. Pegler's litelness and lack of sportsmanship as demonstrated in the spirit of his column today.

I have been reading The Constitution for 20 years, and have been reading Mr. Pegler's column occasionally ever since you began publishing it, and every day for the past month. I have noted his bitterness towards Mr. Roosevelt, and although I did not sympathize with the content or tenor of his remarks, because of the heat of the campaign, I more or less overlooked the mean spiritlessness of his attitude. Now, however, that the election is over, I feel that he, as well as all other true Americans, should yield to the mandate of the people, bury the hatchet, and employ his faculties in the interest of national peace, rather than to nourish hatred and dissension.

A GREAT VICTORY.
Editor, Constitution: When we take into consideration the type of campaign conducted by the Republican leaders, it was a remarkable victory. The President said "take it or leave it." It took a lot of courage for a candidate running for the great office of the presidency to insist on certain laws that were not "vote-getting" laws. The fact that he made only five speeches, I wonder what would have happened had he really campaigned. Some of the Republican orators did their best to cash in on the war fear. So, when we consider all the facts, and the great wealth at their disposal, it really was a great victory by a great man.

NATION NEEDS MEN LIKE PEGLER, ICKES.

Editor, Constitution: The writer is an A. F. of L. R., an A. L. R. and a F. D. R. r., etc., etc. Nevertheless he is of the opinion that your editorial, "Pen Dipped in Vitriol," appearing in The Constitution November 9, 1940, is subject to criticism in the face of the need of our body politic. If there ever was a time a country needed a few iconoclasts in its midst it is the United States of North America right now.

Men of Westbrook Pegler's and Harold Ickes' stripe are a God-send to our country. They have something on the ball that we should read, think of and do something about. We should neither censure nor censor them. Give them the bit and let them go; they are safety vents for our national boiler and caretakers of our national race track. Let them ring the bell and blow the whistle as often as they like about anything they wish.

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Dr. James W. Merritt, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist Convention, in his report to the convention, now in session in Macon, reveals substantial increase in the work of Georgia Baptists for the first 10 months of 1940.

Total offerings for the first 10 months of this year have amounted to $511,977.84, an increase of $103,479.95 over the same period last year. Dr. Merritt further reports that for the past seven years there has been a steady increase in the missionary gifts of Georgia Baptists. Georgia leads the states of the south in gifts to the Baptist Hundred Thousand Club, the plan by which the denomination is retiring the indebtedness on its south-wide agencies occasioned by the sudden decrease in contributions in the years of the depression. Georgia Baptists gave $24,487.21 to this fund the first 10 months of this year.

Substantial increase is reported in all departments of the Georgia Baptist Convention's work. Present total enrollment in the Baptist Sunday schools of the state is 268,987, an increase of 5,531 over 1939. Enrollment in the Baptist Training Union, which is the young people's work, is 83,869, an increase of 13,365 over 1939. Enrollment in the Woman's Missionary Union is 58,717, an increase of 4,717 over 1939. The Baptist Student work of the denomination is now prospering on every campus in the state under a staff of four experienced workers.

Mercer University reports new buildings and other improvements amounting to approximately $700,000. Bessie Tift College, Shorter College, Norman Junior College and Brewster-Parker Institute report increased enrollments and substantial improvements to buildings and grounds.

The benevolent institutions of the convention, the Georgia Baptist Orphan Home and the Georgia Baptist Hospital, report one of the best years in their history. The hospital has given free service in the amount of $57,614.30 during the first 10 months of 1940. The Orphan Home, located at Hapeville, has made improvements to its physical property amounting to more than $100,000 during the year. The home is now caring for more children than at any time in its history.

Perhaps the feature of this convention has been the report on the movement to enlarge the circulation of the Christian Index, the weekly newspaper owned and published by the convention, which serves all the agencies above referred to and all the causes fostered by the Southern Baptist Convention. The goal of the increased circulation is 51,000. Another feature of this convention has been the increased number of baptisms reported during the past year. Altogether, Georgia Baptists seem to be going steadily forward in their united effort to further the Kingdom of God.

'Go' Signal Given Boulevard Project

The "go" signal was given Atlanta's first super-boulevard, an 80-foot thoroughfare, yesterday when WPA approved a $30,000 widening project for Boulevard between Ponce de Leon avenue and Houston street.

John A. White, fifth ward councilman, in whose ward the project is to be executed, pointed out the city already has provided $9,000 as a sponsor's contribution and that WPA has sanctioned the expenditure of $22,553.75 as its share of the improvement. Property owners have donated rights of way.

"Workers will begin the project before end of the year or shortly thereafter," White said. "Both city construction department and WPA will use every facility to push the project to rapid completion."

Cotton Growers To Vote Dec. 7 On '41 Quotas

Breedlove Cites Points for Consideration by Farmers.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 13.—(P)—Georgia cotton farmers will vote December 7 on the question of applying marketing quotas to their 1941 crop.

Today Tom R. Breedlove, state AAA administrative officer, suggested that the growers study the European war and its effect upon cotton before voting.

"If Germany and her allies win, we may be faced with unfavorable trade policies and economic blockades, the effects of which may be even more severe than naval blockades," he said.

Effects of Warfare.
"If Great Britain wins, it will be extremely difficult to carry on normal trade in the markets of the world because a great part of the world's resources and purchasing power will have been dissipated."

Two-thirds of the growers voting are required to approve quotas for the crop. Application of quotas limits the production and marketing to a national production figure established by the secretary of agriculture according to marketing conditions.

Breedlove pointed out that during the first three months of the new season, the United States sold less than 300,000 bales abroad compared with about 1,750,000 bales during the same period last year.

Domestic Outlook.
He painted a brighter picture of the domestic outlook. He said estimates are that about 8,000,000 bales would be used in this country this season, a new record.

More than 250,000 Georgia farmers grow cotton. They will vote at places established by county agricultural committees in communities throughout the state. Cotton crops have been produced for several seasons without interruption under quota restrictions. Tobacco growers who also operate under production restrictions administered through the AAA this year voted to place themselves under a three-year control program.

IF YOU CAN DO THIS

You don't need a Shoppers Ticket

IMAGINE the surprise and indignation of innocent pedestrians when the unconcerned lady above parked her automobile on the sidewalk in front of her favorite store! She really had to run in for only twenty-seven minutes to match a sample of ribbon for the baby's new dress, and of course it was a great convenience to be able to park right in front of the door.

Now most of us can't do that, so we do the next best thing—we board a street car or bus and ride to town and back on a Shoppers Ticket.

Shoppers Tickets are a natural for busy homemakers who want to get their shopping done with as little exertion and delay as possible. Available from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. every day except Saturday, they are the logical answer to the problem of crowded streets and nonexistent parking spaces.

Try this easy, effortless way of dodging traffic troubles. Tell the operator, "Shopper's Ticket, please."

New Movies Bring Comedy, Melodrama

Widely Discussed Film With Smooth Dialogue Opens Today.

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.
Comedy with a spicing of melodrama seems to be the dominating ingredient in the films being offered for Atlanta's entertainment during the coming week.

"Arise My Love," with Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland, is the most talked of picture currently about the nation. It begins today at the Fox.
"Christmas in July," produced by the young director who scored so heavily with "The Great Mc-Ginty," is current at the Paramount. Dick Powell and Ellen Drew have the leads.
Young Lew Ayres has the lead role in two films. "The Golden Fleece" begins tomorrow at the Rialto, and "Dr. Kildare Goes Home" starts today at the Rhodes.
"Wyoming," teaming Wallace
Beery and Marjorie Main, starts today at Loew's and is expected to draw back the crowds which didn't like the $1.10 price of the Chaplin film. You can see Beery at regular prices.
Tommy Tucker continues through Saturday at the Roxy, and will give way Sunday to the Andrews Sisters and Bunny Berigan as Lucas & Jenkins begin operation of the theater.
"The Mark of Zorro" is being moved to the Capitol for a hold-over run.

Loyalist flyer (an American by birth) who faces death before the Fascist forces, "Arise My Love" finds its story basis in the true life story of the Dahls.
Comedy predominates until the closing scenes when war takes over and the real fight begins.
Much current history is worked into the film.
Paramount
Hollywood tried to turn the seasons wrong side out and produced a film called "Christmas in July."
To give it the perfect setting for a premiere, they got the mayor of Westwood (adjoining Hollywood) to declare a Christmas celebration in July. The city council didn't like the idea, though it is warm in July and December in filmland.
Featured in this film, which opened at the Paramount theater yesterday, are Dick Powell and Ellen Drew. It is advertised as "a grand comedy about two grand kids who meet up with Santa Claus in July."
The film is produced by the same man who made "The Great McGinty."

LEADER of the band is Jerry Blaine, who brings his
"Dreamline Orchestra" to the Henry Grady hotel's Spanish Room for an engagement which will begin on Saturday.

when completed was a combination of dwelling and hospital.
Rialto
Lew Ayres is at his best in "The Golden Fleece," new M-G-M. production which starts an engagement at the Rialto theater tomorrow morning. The young actor, who won most of his fame in the role of "Dr. Kildare," is seen this time in the role of a timid insurance clerk who has to impress his boss in order to win a raise of salary necessary if he is to marry the girl he loves, the boss's secretary.
Involved in the story are racketeers, a $50,000 insurance policy, jails, gun molls, rewards, phony stock that proves real and a fire that burns up ever so much real currency.
The feminine star is Rita Johnson, while others in the cast include Lloyd Nolan, Virginia Grey, Leon Errol, Richard Carle, Nat
Pendleton and other favorites.

Cameo
The gun-blazing melodramatics of the old west are brought to life on the Cameo theater screen tomorrow and Saturday, by two-fisted Charles Starrett, one of the most popular outdoor action stars of today, in Columbia's thrilling, suspenseful "West of Abilene."
The film's exciting narrative is tempered by the rhythmic romantic range ballads of the singing Sons of the Pioneers and Marjorie Cooly, seen as Starrett's romantic lead, "West of Abilene" is a first-run picture in Atlanta.
"The Man Who Talked Too Much" is on the same program.

LIONS CLUB PROGRAM.
ROCHELLE, Ga., Nov. 13.—The Abbeville Lions Club is sponsoring a project to improve and extend the city's water mains, to install additional fire plugs, and to assist in securing approved fire-fighting equipment for the city.

Loew's
Wallace Beery, the old reproof laughs at the Loew's Grand to-

The story:
The War Between the States over, Reb Harkness starts holding up trains in Missouri but finally is forced to flee. He falls in with Steve Kincaid, former comrade, and his family en route to a ranch in Wyoming, and goes along. The district is ruled by one Buckley, who heads a sinister gang and stirs up the Indians.
Steve is murdered and Reb becomes protector of the family.
Buckley tries to rob Reb. General Custer, investigating sales of arms to Indians, jails Reb, but Mehltabel, lady blacksmith at Angel City, knows that Buckley will kill him in jail and helps him escape. Local ranchers are organized by Reb and stolen cattle recovered. Buckley discovers and reveals Reb's train-robbing career and new adventures start.

Rhodes
"Dr. Kildare Goes Home," with Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and John Shelton, starts a first-run engagement at the Rhodes theater today.
In the story, a country town, which doctors have left because of a financial depression, is stricken by disease and Lew Ayres and John Shelton, aided by Barrymore, organize a clinic and disease prevention movement. Study of similar moves carried out in actuality disclosed that old houses, cheap to rent, are usually obtained for such purposes. So a replica of an ancient home was erected.
The makeshift sanitized walls and hospital details were added.
The old living room with high ceilings and an arched door became a waiting room. The parlor, its floor covered with white oil-

A full pardon has been granted to James Flemister, convicted of burglary in Fulton county, the Fulton superior court was notified yesterday by the Governor.

Mrs. Flynn, 80, Dies at Home; Funeral Today

Was Widow of Former U. S. Vice Consul at Naples, Italy.

Mrs. Lillie L. Flynn, 80, widow of Thomas F. Flynn, former United States vice consul in Naples, Italy, and later an Atlanta insurance executive, died yesterday at her residence, 485 Peoples street, S. W., after an illness of three weeks.

A native of Atlanta, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Lloyd, she had resided here all her life.

She was an active worker of St. Anthony's Catholic church from the time of its founding and was a member of the Ladies' Guild.

She attended school at the Georgetown Visitation Convent in Washington, D. C.

Upshaw Child Paid Tribute by Crowd at Rites

Estimated 2,000 Attend Brief Services in Pine Log Church.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Nov. 13. In the little Methodist church at Pine Log, which his great-grandfather helped to build long before the War Between the States, last rites were held this afternoon for Murray Upshaw Jr., two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Upshaw, whose body was found on Sugar Hill mountain yesterday morning after a four-day search.

The Rev. E. D. Carlock, pastor, and the Rev. W. G. Crawley, of Cartersville, officiated. What old-timers called the largest crowd ever to attend a service in the church gathered to pay tribute to the child and to offer comfort to the sorrowing parents. The crowd was so large it was impossible for scores to even get near the edifice. An estimated 2,000 were present, and hundreds of others came between 12 and 2 o'clock, while the body lay in state in the church.

CCC Boys Attend. Several hundred CCC boys from the Bydal and Cartersville camps, who assisted in the long search for the boy, were among those attending the funeral.

Tenants on the Upshaw farms, friends and neighbors from throughout Bartow county, and others from far and near were in the crowd gathered in quiet tribute to a little boy who fought the elements and lost.

The crowd stood beneath bleak, dreary, rainy skies, many unable to get inside the small church.

Messages of Sympathy. Although grief-stricken, the parents of the child have borne the tragedy of the past few days well. They expressed their thanks to everyone who assisted in the search and for the hundreds of messages that came from every section of the country. Local telegraph offices were swamped with messages of sympathy from all over the nation.

Funeral services were brief and simple, and burial was in the cemetery at Pine Log, near the old Pine Log camp grounds, where annual camp meetings have been held for over 50 years. Fallbearers

Mellett, Close Advisor Of F.D.R., Pauses Here

Lowell Mellett, of Washington, D. C., former magazine editor and now close advisor of President Roosevelt, was in town for a few hours yesterday on an automobile trip through the south.

He declined to comment on any political or national developments.

SOLUTION—Yesterday the part of this picture framed in white appeared in The Constitution for identification. It was identified as part of the Carnegie Library, the Federal Reserve Bank and the Hurt building. The Hurt building it was. To Mrs. Stella R. Wellborn goes a dollar bill, not only for correctly spotting the building, but for a neat 25-word summary of its history.

KNOW IT?—Twenty-five words on the type and function of the building of which this doorway in a part may win you a dollar. Mail your answer to The Constitution's Contest Editor immediately.

Mrs. Wellborn Wins Dollar in Picture Contest

Identifies Photo as Part of the Hurt Building.

Know Atlanta and win a dollar? Or words to that effect.

To the person who best identifies the building of which the doorway in an adjoining column is a part, The Constitution will mail a dollar bill.

Answers should be addressed to The Constitution's Contest Editor and contain only 25 words. The more facts about the building, the better. But don't use over 25 words.

In case of a tie the contestant whose letter bears the earliest postmark will be declared the winner.

Yesterday's winner was Mrs. Stella R. Wellborn, 908 Juniper street, N. E. Mrs. Wellborn correctly thought the columned doorway, framed in white and in an adjacent picture, was part of the Hurt building, and identified it as the first home of the Federal Reserve bank.

It was that easy. A dollar will be mailed her today.

Defense Plans Year Ahead of Schedule-Knox

Secretary Says Navy Will Get 26 Warships in 1941.

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Secretary of Navy Frank Knox declared today that the national defense program was a "full year ahead of schedule" after he had inspected the Boston navy yard and ship-building plants in this area.

"In 1942 we will have many ships," he declared in an interview. "We will be well under way then. In 1941 we are getting 26 new ships, including two new battleships and one aircraft carrier, the Hornet."

He said that 4,000 more men would soon be put to work at the navy drydock at the South Boston army base to enlarge facilities there.

Analyzing defense needs for Boston, the secretary asserted that in addition to the present coastal defenses the city needed mobile defense at least 75 miles out to sea.

"This base," he said, referring to the Boston navy yard, "could be bombed from 20,000 feet. Anti-aircraft guns would do no good. We want to meet any enemy coming over."

"The navy drydock," he added, "is one of the most important navy points on the east coast. If we have trouble, all ships in the area will have to be repaired and equipped here."

NLRB Charges 'Unfair Practice'

National Labor Relations Board yesterday announced a decision charging the Union Manufacturing Company of Union Point had refused to bargain collectively with the CIO's Textile Workers' Union of America when the company demanded that any agreement between it and the union be ratified by a vote of all employees, whether union members or not.

Majority of the employees chose the TWU as its bargaining agent at a secret ballot in September, 1939, the board said. Since then the board charges the company is guilty of unfair labor practices by announcing any further agreement would have to be ratified in the presence of company officials by all employees.

Express Airplane To Begin Service

An additional airplane, the "Peachtree Flyer," will be put in service tomorrow by the Eastern Air Lines for non-stop express operation between Atlanta, Washington and New York. This will constitute the seventh daily round-trip service of the line over the route.

The airplane will leave Candler field at 1:30 p. m., arrive in Washington at 5:55 o'clock (eastern standard time), and in New York at 7:45 o'clock. The return schedule calls for leaving LaGuardia field in New York at 10:30 p. m., and arriving here at 4:15 a. m.

Atlanta's steadily growing volume of air patronage was given by officials of the line as the reason for the added service. Slight schedule adjustments also were announced yesterday.

Talmadge Son Says He Won't Fill State Job

Will Engage in Practice of Law, Herman Declares.

By LUKE GREENE.

Herman Talmadge, son of Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge, will not receive a job in the state government as a reward for his work in last summer's political campaign.

Young Talmadge dispelled any notion that he might be headed for Capitol Hill with his father by inserting a notice in this week's Statesman, the Talmadge newspaper, which will be circulated tomorrow.

At the same time he strongly indicated that Carlton Mobley, who served as executive secretary to Governor Talmadge in his last administration, would again fill that post.

To Practice Law.

Young Talmadge said he planned to practice law and no longer be affiliated with political headquarters in the William-Oliver building.

"I have returned to the practice of law after an extended absence therefrom while engaged in politics in behalf of my father," he said. "It shall be my purpose throughout his administration to engage in the practice of law."

Young Talmadge has handled two successful campaigns for his father and was named Democratic national committeeman from Georgia when delegates to the state Democratic convention declared vacant the post now held by Governor Rivers. Talmadge has not yet been recognized as the national committeeman.

"Any matter that any person desires to take up with my father relative to the state government in any capacity should be taken up with Carlton Mobley, 1417 William-Oliver building, Atlanta," young Talmadge said in his notice.

"Mr. Mobley, as you know," he added, "served as my father's executive secretary while he was Governor. Any matter that is taken up directly with Mr. Mobley will receive my father's personal attention."

Talmadge Policy.

This step is in line with the Governor-elect's policy of keeping his relatives off the public payroll. His son was suggested for the chairmanship of the state Democratic committee, but the Governor-elect decided such a move might not be in keeping with his policy.

In a special column in the Statesman, Talmadge spokesmen attacked the rumor that Roy Harris, who is a candidate for reelection as speaker of the house, would be the "Hell-Bent Edwards" of the next administration by leading an opposition bloc in the lower house.

Following is an observation from the column, "Uncle Ralph Ob-serves":

"It would take an abandoned public conscience, indeed, to provide Roy with a breeze for his whirlwind at the next session. If the public should bring itself to the point of supporting anything from this breed of the Rivers' administration, then Uncle Ralph, in his humble position as a private citizen, would support a resolution giving this country back to the Indians. That would be the only resolution the general assembly could pass with any degree of good grace."

Randall Evans, of Thomson, is Talmadge's choice for the speaker-ship.

LEAVE INCUBATORS.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 13.—(AP) Mary, Ann and Sue, triplet daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Coursey, declared their independence Monday, Armistice Day. They left the incubators they have occupied since their birth seven weeks ago and received their first real clothing. The doctor had said "okay" to the change.

Reich Officially Denies Sinking of Liner Bremen

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The German radio today said it was officially denied that the German liner Bremen had been sunk off the Danish coast.

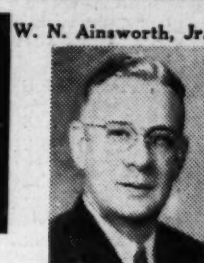

A Danish family in San Francisco had received a letter from Denmark relatives saying the 49,864-ton ship was sunk in the Kattegat, and that Danes believed it had been torpedoed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Steel and a number of other recent industrial leaders were under pressure in today's stock market, but a wide assortment of specialties displayed renewed strength.

Senior stocks pushed up in the final hour and forenoon losses of fractions to more than 2 points elsewhere were reduced at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off 3/4 of a point to 46.1. While the composite had earned a portion of its advance of the past week or so, it was not overlooked that a month ago it stood at 44.5.

Continued optimism for business and the belief dividend accumulations on several preference stocks would be paid off if the industrial upswing proceeded, proved a bolstering influence. Many traders, at the same time, inclined to stand aside pending outcome of the Hitler-Molotov conferences at Berlin, which, some suggested, might lead to a new "peace offensive" and prove unsettling marketwise.

A favorable survey by Iron Age failed to prop steel stocks. The announcement of the U. S. Steel Corporation of plans to increase ingot capacity of its southern subsidiaries. Ralls just about held their own as carrier executives forecast rising traffic over the next six months. Motors were unresponsive to reports of sustained demand in this field. Coppers were relatively narrow in the wake of estimates deliveries of the red metal in October hit a record peak.

Principal share losers included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, American Carbide, Western Union, American Smelting and International, and others.

On the other hand, General Steel Castings preferred shot up 6 points and gains of 1 to 4 were posted for American Woolen preferred, Armour preferred, International Paper common and preferred, Climax Manufacturing preferred, Climax Molybdenum and Hiram Walker.

Modest improvement was retained by Wilson &amp; Co., Armour common, Evans Products, Goodrich, United Aircraft, Pan American Airways, Phelps Dodge, American Can and the Geoplinea Railroad. Pennsylvania declared a 5-cent dividend previously.

On the off side in the curb were dividend of $1 on the common Aluminum of America, Bell Aircraft, Bath Iron Works, Jones &amp; Laughlin and N. Y. Zinc. Plus signs were shown for Brewster Aero, Gulf Oil and Pennsylvania Central Air Lines.

Fund Leaders Report Pledges Of $439,680

Goal Is Short $133,046 But Additional Gifts Are Unreported.

A total of $439,680 was posted on the board yesterday as volunteer workers gathered for their final report meeting of the eighteenth annual Community Fund appeal.

Shooting for a $572,726 goal, declared by Fund leaders the "actual minimum need for the 34 participating agencies," the amount reported raised was $133,046 short of the declared need for agency operating expenses and administration costs.

After extending "sincere thanks" to volunteer solicitors "for the work you have done, the work you are still doing and the work left for in completing unfinished calls," General Appeals Chairman H. Carl Wolf said he felt cheerful about the possible final outcome of the appeal.

Ahead of Last Year.

"We now are about $27,000 better off than at the same period in last year's campaign and I know that in some instances people still are to be solicited who for various reasons have not been available to workers up to this time," Chairman Wolf declared.

Joel Dean, co-chairman of the Decatur and DeKalb county division of the appeal, set the pace for winding up the appeal when he called for "any pledge cards of Decatur folks who have failed for any reason to make a donation this year. We are not going to stop until we know that every man, woman and child in Decatur has been given a fair opportunity to contribute to the Community Fund."

To Complete Calls.

Chairman Wolf said he was sure other group leaders would take the same attitude and make sure all unfinished calls were completed as soon as possible.

Until results of the cleanup can be learned, however, the results of the appeal for 1941 funds will stand at the $438,680 level.

Reports of divisions yesterday showed the following amounts raised to date in the appeal: Men's central, $11,854; women's central, $15,583; office buildings, $13,711; groups, $296,804; public employees, $23,790; advance gifts, No. 1, $46,506; advance gifts, No. 2, $19,737; DeKalb county, $6,377; College Park, $200; Hapeville, $125; East Point, $649; Roswell, $152; school children, $1,733, and colored, $2,509.

Additional gifts of $25 and over handled by the Fund auditing department yesterday included:

A. K. Adams, $100; Armour Fertilizer Works, $50; Charles H. Black Jr., $50; E. I. duPont de Nemours Company, $250; Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Gargen, $200; Fredrick H. Heaton, $25; N. ## Dr. Brady Relies On Therapeutic Test

By Dr. William Brady.

In most cases of peptic (duodenal or gastric) ulcer there are periods of activity or increase in the severity of the symptoms alternating with intervals of quiescence in which the patient is comparatively comfortable.

In not a few cases of "stomach trouble" presenting many signs and symptoms of peptic ulcer X-ray studies fail to corroborate the diagnosis and the course of the ailment as influenced by the therapeutic test proves that smoking was the cause of the peptic ulcer complex. That is to say, a few months after the patient stops smoking all of the symptoms clear up—the phantom ulcer ceases to haunt the victim.

Don't ask me how you can tell whether your stomach trouble is of this nature. If the trouble isn't serious enough to warrant a trial of the therapeutic test on your own hook, it isn't worth writing to Dr. Brady about.

Here it may be well to remind readers in general that it takes perhaps a few days to get "all the nicotine out of the system," just as it takes perhaps a few hours to get all of the monoxide out of the system in a case of carbon monoxide poisoning, but how long it will take to repair the damage done to the body tissues, cells, organs by the poison, if the damage is repairable, is another question. So this therapeutic test begins when smoking is finally given up and continues for at least three months if it is to be of any value at all. I'm sorry about this, believe it or not. But what did I tell you many and many the time? I have always urged temperance upon smokers, not only for the good of health but also for greater enjoyment or solace from the use of tobacco. And I have specifically defined the difference between temperate use and the excess of the tobacco hog. Moreover, my sympathy is not the gush dispensed by some advisers—I have a monograph on the Tobacco Habit which is yours for the asking if you provide a stamped 3-cent envelope bearing your address—I give the service, you pay the freight. In the monograph I suggest remedies to aid in correcting the habit and its ill effects, but do not look for any remedy which can be administered secretly or without the victim's knowledge and earnest co-operation, for there is none in the monograph or anywhere else.

What are the symptoms of peptic ulcer? That, my friend, I hope, is strictly the doctor's business, and the layman, no matter how much he thinks he knows or how little he knows, an "ordinary" doctor knows, had better leave the question to the doctor.

To lounge with glamour you should have the most graceful lines in your lounging robe, says Lucille Ball. Almost classic in its simplicity, and marked by the colors featured in it, is Lucille's unusual housecoat. The ma-

Garbo Recommends "Vitality" Cocktail

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—Fred die Bartholomew started his film career with nothing. He ends it with nothing—in fact a little less than nothing. Freddie, for the moment anyway, is out of the film scene. His last movie was "Tom Brown's Schooldays." And at time of writing, there is nothing on his acting schedule, except some free appearances for British and American charities. Master Bartholomew is now a student at a local high school. He hopes to enter U. C. L. A. next year—if he can afford it. I understand there is still a slight unpaid mortgage on the Westwood house where Freddie lives with his devoted Aunt Cissie and his grandparents. And that economy is the order of the day. Freddie would have been a rich boy today, but for those lawsuits, which, by the way, are still going on. Gosh, it makes me angry!

Rosalind Russell wears a negligee and a backless, strapless built-up evening gown in "This Thing Called Love" that will surprise me if they pass the Hays office. I don't think that Mickey Rooney will ask Linda Darnell for another date. The first and last time that Mickey beamed Linda, he had to bring her home at 10:30 p. m., which is curfew for the brunette beauty, but not for Mickey. Linda has played wife to Tyrone Power so many times that one forgets she is only 17. Department of higher finance. Hedy Lamarr sells her $2,500 limousine, plus her $1,000 station wagon, for a car priced at $1,100. Someone seems to have made a bad bargain.

Garbo is recommending Doctor Hauser's "vitality" cocktail. The chief ingredient is beet juice (This comes to you via the Jones Health Shop). I saw them both coming out of the Beverly Wilshire hotel, arm in arm, Greta, as usual, non-disguised "neath a huge, flopping hat. And I almost said "hello"—but Garbo must have sensed a reporter in the vicinity because she sprinted into a large car, dragging the Doc after her. I'll get her one day though—I hope. Hauser's friendship with Garbo is returning golden dividends. His books on dieting are selling well. And he is booked for a series of local lectures titled, "Live Longer—Look Younger." Several of our aging ingenues are regular attendees.

Screen gals continue to get knocked around—fragile Merle Oberon is socked on the jaw by Melvyn Douglas in "That Uncertain Feeling." Private-life males—don't copy! . . . Luncheon of the week. . . Broderick Crawford, Mischa Auer, Franchot Tone, Andy Devine, Dick Foran, and John Barrymore are seated at the same table in the Universal cafe. The topic of conversation is "women—and how difficult they can be!" Crawford is getting married on the 30th. Mischa Auer is in process of being divorced. Barrymore is about to be. Foran is fighting his wife's suit. And Tone, as you know, is the divorced mate of Joan Crawford.

Laurence Olivier's wig caught fire during the smoke and flame of the death scene at Trafalgar. He's Lord Nelson in "Lady Hamilton." Laurence was so busy dying that he didn't notice the conflagration. Luckily, Henry Wilcoxon did, and he pulled the wig off, burning his hands badly, but saving Olivier. . . Irene Dunne's dentist husband has given up his lucrative practice in New York after Irene's local property, her oil wells—and Irene. Among Irene's property is the proposed site of Prince Mike Romanoff's night club, when he can raise the cash to open it. Latest reports reveal difficulty.

Haven't had a Goldwynism for a long time, but here's one credited to Sam. He was discussing a well-known actress who has been in the news lately. "She's just like Caesar's wife," said Sam. "All things to all men." Which distinctly is not like Caesar's wife!

Patriotic Color Scheme on Coattress

By Lillian Mae.

Fashier gives three cheers for the "stars and stripes" this year! A patriotic mood perfectly illustrated by Pattern 4612, which Lillian Mae has designed for the American housewife. The optional stars-and-stripes design embroidered on the revers and pocket-band are done from an easy transfer motif, with directions included in the Sewing Instructor. The simple-to-make frock is in just three main pieces (see open diagram) with darts for nice fit. The sleeves may be long or short.

Pattern 4612 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 takes 4 1-4 yards 35-inch fabric and 5-8 yard contrast.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "These are your magazines. You may read them. Those on the big table are daddy's. You must not mark in them."

Mother: "How many times must mother tell you that you must not draw in the magazines! You're a bad girl to do that."

Many activities are not bad in themselves; they only need direction.

THE WOMAN'S QUIZ

Q. What is the origin of the expression "The Four Hundred" in New York society?

A. The term originated about 40 years ago when Ward MacAllister was asked to select the guests for a party given by the Vanderbilts. He chose 400 whom he thought qualified to attend.

Q. Why do women's coats button from right to left?

A. This custom is said to have originated because a woman holds a baby in her left arm. Therefore the woman's jacket must be unbuttoned with the right hand without disturbing the child.

Q. How long is the human alimentary canal?

A. It is about seven times the height of the body.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor of The Constitution, 1013 13th Street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Don't telephone; write by directed.

Jinx Proves It Pays to Be Healthy

By Ida Jean Kain.

When a girl can draw $25 an hour—which sounds like a week's wages—just for looking healthy and smiling at the camera, it pays to be healthy and smiling comes easy. And so Jinx Falkenburg finds it!

You may not recognize the name, but the face is bound to be familiar—she's the gorgeous outdoor girl whose photograph decorates so many of the current magazine covers and expensive advertisements. Her pictures would be used even more extensively but for the fact that she is one of the main attractions in a current Broadway hit, and that the show people just laugh—the old mania—at the very idea of letting a girl have time off to pose for the photographers.

Such success goes to prove a number of points—the first, that it pays to be healthy! What Jinx has that some of the other beauties haven't is a look of sheer, exuberant health. And that's no accident! Mrs. Falkenburg's little girl has been brought up right. She got plenty of fruits, vegetables including spinach, milk and even, in the winter, cod liver oil. And she was encouraged to swim and to play tennis with such gratifying results that she is now a backstroke champion and ranks sixth among California's tennis players.

She enjoys outdoor exercise so much that she regards its streamlining effect as purely incidental—even though other people don't!

Here are her measurements: Bust 36 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 37 1-2 inches. She weighs 125 pounds and stands five feet seven in her bare feet—which is further evidence of a good, balanced diet while growing up!

Certainly she proves the advantages of learning to play while you're young! Nowadays her favorite recreation is tennis, swimming, or, when the weather is too cold for those, hiking in the country. She manages to spend every weekend out in the country so that she can be out of doors as much as possible. That is a practice many a career girl could copy, with benefit to health and looks.

Like many tall girls, Jinx has been prone to regard her height as something of a vexation—until Al Jolson put her in his show. But since she is required to walk the full length of the stage every night and two afternoons a week, without speaking a word, holding the audience's attention by sheer force of a regal appearance, she has quit trying to minimize her stature, and is working to perfect her posture.

What about the hands? "They're always a problem," Jinx sighs. "The minute I get set on the stage, I begin to think how much better I would look if my hands were in some other position—but I don't change."

One of the main requisites for poise is smoothly functioning nervous system and Jinx protects herself—the smart girl!—from too much wear and tear by setting aside a definite time for rest each evening before the show. She finds that even after she has been working hard for most of the day, she feels fresh for evening if she allows a couple of hours for relaxing. And that doesn't mean spending the time at small chores! She goes to bed and rests with shades drawn and even has dinner in bed. She doesn't let herself get worn out.

MY DAY: Two Well-Known Statesmen

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

DETROIT, Mich., Tuesday.—In the past few days both England and the United States have suffered the loss of two well-known statesmen. Senator Key Pittman had been in the senate for many years. His service is a matter of record. He was liked by the men with whom he worked. He kept his hold over his constituency and carried more weight in public affairs than the population of his state would indicate.

As younger men come along to take their place on the political stage, they will often hear Senator Pittman's name. He will not be forgotten in the traditions of this honorable and important branch of our government.

Neville Chamberlain, in England, served his country through desperate times. Many people have felt that his policy toward Germany was unwise and dangerous. Perhaps it would be fair to say that his training and his inclination fitted him for different times and different service. He did his best according to his background. He wanted peace and worked for it. That he failed was due of the times in which he lived and then men with whom he had to cope. He must have suffered greatly and history will record that he, at least, dealt honorably with the people whom he approached.

We arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon, oblivious of the fact that one of the worst of winter's storms had been raging through the middle west for several hours. But we no sooner emerged on the street than we were conscious of the high wind and the swirling snow. One of the biggest street signs in Chicago toward late afternoon, the storm spent itself and when we went out for the evening the wind had practically disappeared.

I lectured at a forum where I spoke some four years ago. Then a night train brought us to Detroit this evening. Here again there are signs of the storm everywhere. The little square outside of the Statler hotel is filled with broken glass. One of the highest radio towers was blown down. When nature goes on the rampage, are we mortals discover how puny human beings and their works really are.

In Rumania the earthquake seems to have accomplished in a few short hours what all the aviators of Great Britain have tried unsuccessfully to do for weeks—fires are raging, oil wells are destroyed, and Herr Hitler can direct his rage at no human hand. In this case it looks as though nature was against him.

Novel Hat-Making Contest Features Girl Scout Party

• • • DASHING MILLINERY STYLES have always been inspired by the unusual, according to famous designers of millinery hats. If true, they would have gleaned enough inspiration to provide them with new modes for several years to come had they been present last evening at the supper given by the Girl Scout Council in honor of the Girl Scout leaders at the home of Mrs. Lee Ashcraft on Ponce de Leon avenue.

The highlight of the evening's entertainment was a hat-making contest in which the honor guests participated. It was the clever idea of Mrs. C. V. Minor, chairman for the party, and one which future hostesses might well remember.

Mousetraps, tea strainers, dish mops, garden hose, flowers, vells and a variety of millinery trimmings were the materials used in fashioning the hats. Believe it or not, the finished products were not one whit more ridiculous than the current creations seen at fashionable gatherings and which are referred to as "ravings".

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Ashcraft, Mrs. Albert Adams Sr. and Mrs. C. E. Shepard. They awarded two prizes, one to the designer of the most original hat, and the other to the creator of the most amusing.

Since the whole party pivoted around the theme of the contest, the decorations also carried out the millinery motif. The table in the dining room had for decoration large Mexican sombreros filled with colorful flowers, and colored paper hats were used as placecards.

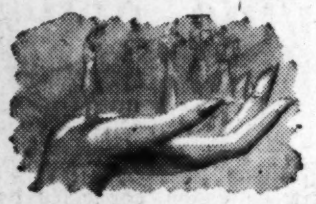

The affair turned out to be a tremendous success, and it wouldn't be at all surprising if the leaders present should decide to add the making of hats from odds and ends to the list of handicrafts taught their Girl Scout groups.

• • • THERE IS great rejoicing in the hearts of Caroline and Bill Minnich over the birth of William R. Minnich Jr. Their infant son was born at Piedmont hospital on November 7, and he completes the trio of an interesting group of Atlanta children.

Cary, age five, and Gail, age three, are his sisters, and the little girls were taken to the hospital for their first glimpse of their new-born brother. Although they were aware that the junior William was a very little boy, they were keenly disappointed that he could not walk at all.

A pair of miniature boxing gloves was attached to the vase of flowers sent to the baby by Betty and William Nixon, and a miniature football was tied to another vase of flowers. William is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Minnich on his paternal side, and Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Paulin are his maternal grandparents.

Defense Committee.

The National Defense Committee of the Baron DeKalb Chapter, D. A. R., will sponsor a study group Friday at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. S. A. Cartledge, 314 Inman drive in Decatur. Colonel Percival S. Moses, president of the Reserve Officers' Association, who is on active duty at the Georgia Military Department, will speak on "National Defense."

Because Thanksgiving has a bad habit of swooping down on homemakers before they're quite ready, I suggest that it isn't a bit too soon to start planning your turkey dinner. You might, in fact, thumb-tack this column up in your kitchen and then watch for the Wilson Column early next week in which your correspondent gives you further hints on how to turn out a brilliantly successful feast for your family and guests.

Thanksgiving Hints to Remember

A new note for your turkey is to serve it on slices of Wilson's Tender Made Ham. Delicious! Stuffing the turkey at least a day ahead makes for better flavor and leaves you with a fuss-free holiday. ONLY WILSON & CO. MAKES TENDER MADE HAM

CUT—DON'T MELT—BUTTER
For lighter, fluffier dressing, cut the butter into marble-sized pieces and toss it through the bread crumbs with two forks. The flavor of the butter is important. Use a delicately flavored butter like Clear Brook.

GOOD-BYE, MR. COVER

I have always found that it is better to roast a turkey in an open roaster. Use a moderate (350° F.) oven and bake slowly.
And to protect your reputation as a fine cook, order Wilson's Certified Turkey. It is not too early to order one now from your dealer.
You'll find these plump meaty turkeys roast to mouth-watering tenderness.

OLD-FASHIONED PUMPKIN PIE

We found at Rector's, that when it came to Thanksgiving desserts, the sophisticates forsook all others for Pumpkin Pie a La Rector. Cut 1/2 cup Wilson's Certified All-Purpose Shortening into 2 1/2 cups of sifted cake flour. Dissolve 1 teaspoon salt in about 1/4 cup cold water and add to flour mixture, stirring with a fork until the mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Roll out half of this recipe and line a pie dish. Bake partially about 8 minutes. Fill with your favorite pumpkin pie filling and bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for one hour.
N. B. Better make two pies while you are at it. And may friends and family make it a happy day!

Williamson Picks Georgetown and Michigan To Win Big Games

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Aerial Circus NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 13.—Football fans down this way have seen the Baughs and the O'Briens of the Southwest Conference throw a football around, but they wonder if Georgia hasn't improved a bit on the original aerial circus.

Figures have been presented to prove that Georgia is one of the country's finest passing teams. In completing almost half the passes attempted, Georgia has made the following record since the season opened:

Game—	Passes Attempted	Completed	Yards Gained
-------	------------------	-----------	--------------

Oglethorpe	6	5	69
South Carolina	11	4	61
Ole Miss	11	7	64
Columbia	29	10	157
Kentucky	24	13	158
Auburn	17	6	112
Florida	39	18	286

Totals 137 63 907

With Jim Todd doing most of the flinging, Georgia put on the season's top aerial show against Florida. The Bulldogs scored both touchdowns on passes.

For the season to date—in seven games—Georgia has gained approximately 144 yards per completed pass. The running game does not match the attack through the air, but with Sinkwich in top shape, Georgia presents a shattering double-barreled attack. Just ask Auburn.

Vulnerable Tulane has had a lot of experience defending against passes, but there still exists a weakness against aials. There is no reason to think Georgia can't pick up 100 or more yards and a few points, perhaps, by use of the forward pass.

In 11 games two years ago, with the great Parker Hall throwing the ball, Ole Miss Gained a lot of recognition because of a record of more than 1,000 yards gained through the air.

Georgia is rather close to the 1,000 mark now. A consistent passing attack soared to new heights against Florida. It is really something to gain 286 yards on passes alone.

Then, too, it is something else to gain only 19 yards net on the ground, but that was with Sinkwich on the bench. Down here they are expecting Sinkwich to play Saturday. Tulane didn't have Bob Glass against Alabama but he will be back in the lineup for Georgia. Glass is from Massillon, Ohio, not far from Youngstown, Sinkwich's home town.

It could be an interesting duel.

Bane, Too Speaking of passing, Georgia has also found the aerial game to be a bane as well as a boon, that is to say the defense against passes has been such as to allow touchdown plays which proved costly.

The second Georgia touchdown was the result of a pass, made against a Georgia back who hadn't seen much action. The Bulldogs simply had run out of experienced subs.

As a whole, the Bulldogs have improved on pass defense, and unless the Greenies are tremendously improved in pass offense, the Bulldogs should fare very well if there is any luck at stopping the power along the ground.

Jakie Atz Jakie Atz, the old Pelican and Fort Worth manager now a scout in the Detroit chain, is wintering here. Jake will attend the minor league meeting in Atlanta next month.

Pie DuFour recalled an interesting story on Jakie today. It happened supposedly when Atz was managing the Pels one year when Jules Heinemann was head of the club.

Things hadn't gone so well and when time came to pay off at the end of the season, it was decided to take the players in alphabetical order.

It seems that Atz would have been among the first, but no. He was going under the name of Zimmerman then, according to the story. When Heinemann got down to the Z's nothing was left.

The next year Heinemann met Jake at the train and said, "Welcome back, Zimmerman." "Zimmerman, h—l," responded Jakie, "my name's Atz, when do I get paid?"

Stanford Gets Call To Bump Oregon State

Alabama, Tulane, Auburn Selected in Big Southern Contests.

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.

There are several big games this week, but what we pick as the BIGGEST is Georgetown vs. Boston College.

Here are two upstarts who have never been mentioned in connection with "Ivy" or "Big Ten" leaders. But they've surely gone to town this year.

On the strength of very high ratings, we'll pick Georgetown over Boston College and figure that a "howl" contender may be decided in this match.

According to tradition, Michigan should win in a very close game over Northwestern in a leading game.

Down in the boundary between the Missouri valley and the southwest, and probably against most pickers, we're going to take Missouri against Oklahoma.

On the west coast, those surprising Indians of Stanford will take powerful Oregon State, according to the figures in our book. Stanford is undefeated and untied. Oregon State has lost only to Washington, 0-19. If Stanford gets by this one, it looks like the Rose Bowl for them.

In major circles we take Auburn over L. S. U. And, oh, how the times have changed—Tulsa over Baylor! California over Oregon is the system's choice in a very close game.

Rather close, will be Navy over Columbia.

It's Brown over Harvard. Can't those Browns ever lose now?

The figures say that Nebraska will take Pittsburgh by one or more touchdowns. Another traditional game will be Princeton over Yale.

Among other leaders we pick: Arizona over Loyola of California; Hardin-Simmons over Catholic U.—and who ever heard of Hardin-Simmons until the last few years?

Alabama over Georgia Tech; Temple over Holy Cross; Villanova over Manhattan, in another close one; Michigan State over Marquette; Florida over Miami, of Florida, just barely a breather; Indiana over Wisconsin, close; Texas over T. C. U., also close; Tulane over Georgia; Washington State over U. C. L. A., and it'll be close; Utah over Colorado State, for a close one which may decide the championship of the Big Seven. On Sunday, a very brave prediction is St. Mary's of California over Santa Clara.

Representative football games to be played this week are listed below with each team's latest rating according to the Williamson National Rating System. This rating is a measure of each team's performance to date this season. Results of the games are predicted on this basis.

GABBY LET OUT AS CUBS MANAGER—CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Philip E. Wrigley (right), president of the Chicago Cubs, announced today that Gabby Hartnett (left) would not be signed to a new contract as manager when his present contract expires December 31. The two are shown after the announcement. Wrigley said several men were being considered for the job of 1941 manager.

THE SPORTLIGHT

BY GRANTLAND RICE

AN UNBALANCED GAME.

It must be remembered, in your remaining prognostications and your selections, that while American football is the greatest game ever invented when it comes to a mixture of spirit and skill, to condition, to player interest and to crowd excitement, it is still an unbalanced game in the way of just rewards.

The better team doesn't always win—not by 50 kilometers. I have talked this season with over 20 leading coaches about this phase of football, and they all agree. They admit that you can outplay another team badly—along the ground and through the air—and still lose the ball game.

I've located over 40 teams this season who have made more yards along the ground and through the air than the team they have beaten, and still have lost. When two good teams meet, the breaks almost always carry the winning story. Which means the flip of a coin.

This is no indictment of football, as a game. It is the turn that gives the underdog his chance against better football people. It is the factor that gives its thrills to big crowds, which have realized there are few setups.

First downs have become minor factors. Last Saturday 17 teams made more first downs and greater yardage—in many cases by decisive margins—and yet lost. It is something like an open golf championship with a vast roulette wheel spinning the answer.

But it is stupid to say always that "the better team won." It is often truer to say, "The lucky team won." And most coaches know this.

Calling the Turn.

The forward pass came along in 1906. That was 34 years ago. Four years later, some 30 years ago, I happened to be with Hurry-Up Yost of Michigan, and Bill Hanna, one of the star football writers who was a veteran when Frank Hinkley was a freshman at Yale.

"This is a new game," Yost told us. "I've found at Michigan we can beat the second team by seven touchdowns on Tuesday, and fail to score on Wednesday. Passes and plays click one day. They don't the next. It's all different."

That was 30 years ago. But Yost saw what was coming—a better game for the player, a far better game for the crowd, but no longer a game for past performers, and no longer for accepted form. Yost at that time saw ahead how many better football teams were going to be beaten by underdogs, by minor teams.

"It will be terrific," he said. "I only hope the writers and the crowds will understand what is going to take place. It will be a better sporting contest for everybody—except for the better team."

For Example, Minnesota.

This season Minnesota stepped into one of the toughest schedules of the year. I'd say the toughest. The Gophers barely scrambled by Washington, and I happen to know that both Jimmy Phelan and Washington thought they should win the game—with 30 per cent of the breaks.

Ohio State had two easy chances to beat Minnesota and blew both, which is nothing to Buckeye credit. An intricate play called in the rain for a one-yard touchdown wasted one of them.

One point after touchdown for Northwestern would have tied Minnesota. Two points after touchdown would have won. The point after touchdown is the cheap concession from the rules committee to the crowd—not to the good of football.

In the Michigan game the Wolverines were all over the Gophers—something like 15 first downs to five. Michigan that day

Walsh Elected Head of P.G.A. For '41 Season

Vote Is 35 to 34; McGuire Re-elected as Treasurer.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The National Professional Golfers Association today unanimously re-elected Tom Walsh, of Chicago, president for another year.

Frank Sprogel, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was named secretary, replacing Charles R. Clark, Willoughby, Ohio. The vote was 35 to 34. Willie Maguire, of Houston, Texas, was re-elected treasurer, defeating Joel Smith, of Hartford, Conn., 47 to 18.

Walsh said that the contract of Fred Corcoran, of Boston, as tournament bureau manager had been continued through 1941. Corcoran, who arranged a 1939 tournament program in which the stars played for $160,000 and attracted some 500,000 spectators, has lined up another attractive winter program.

Walsh said it was likely that several recommendations now before the convention would be approved at tomorrow's final session. The most important, one introduced by Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, chairman of the tournament committee, would authorize a national tournament in which club professionals would pair with a female star from his club in a tourney bringing together pro and woman combinations from all parts of the nation.

Turkey Tournay Scheduled Friday

The turkey tournament at Candler Park scheduled yesterday was postponed on account of rain. The tournament will be held on Friday morning instead.

Georgetown Quarterback Is No Dummy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Coach Jack Hagerty, of Georgetown, which meets Boston College Saturday, may see his undefeated Hoyas outplayed, but he doesn't think he'll see them out-generated.

"Our boy Joe McFadden," said the Georgetown coach, "is just about the coolest thing I've ever seen under fire in a college game. He won't call anything wrong, you can bet on that."

McFadden is hard to second-guess as many an opposing field general will tell you.

Once this season he called the same play five times in succession when each time the opposing club was expecting something different. After that he didn't call it again all day, despite the fact it gained.

Joe is a senior, quarterback and blocker, but he sometimes carries the ball just to cross up the opposition.

was the better team on the field. But Minnesota won on a single play.

Yet, I still say Minnesota has turned in the best job of the year, barring nobody, when you look at the Gopher schedule. Yet, without the breaks, Minnesota could easily have lost at least three ball games. Maybe four.

"Minnesota this fall," a veteran Big Nine coach told me, "is like Iowa was last year. Iowa last year could easily have been beaten by Indiana, Minnesota, Purdue and Notre Dame, which Eddie Anderson knows. Notre Dame is in the same spot. Notre Dame on the day's play could easily have lost to Army and Navy. When you play tough schedules, anything can happen."

"You've got to give Minnesota credit for taking the year's big gamble—a gamble that even Minnesota might easily have lost three ways. But it has still been the big job of 1940."

For One Game.

"The main angle in football," Elmer Layden, of Notre Dame, said, "is the mental attitude for one game. I know how Army and Navy shoot for us. I told you that you could throw out all other games. When you get set to win one game, no one can say what will happen. For example, blocking and tackling are about 80 per cent spirit for that one day."

"Don't figure any of these unbeaten teams are riding safely. They are not. They are the ones that usually get jittery. The others can shoot the works. I can tell you right now that Notre Dame, Minnesota, Stanford, Texas A. & M. and any of these teams playing hard schedules can stumble in a hurry. And that brings us back again to mental attitude, which is a big part of football. I only wish everyone knew how big a part it is."

Cubs Seek Successor To Old Gabby Hartnett

Phil Wrigley Regrets Action, But Believes Right Combination Is Essential.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Gabby Hartnett, who for 19 straight years carried his big red face, bat and chest protector to the plate for the Chicago Cubs, came to the end of the road with that team today.

His contract as Cub manager, said Owner P. K. Wrigley, will not be renewed when it expires December 31.

The surprise announcement, one which was not without a tinge of sadness, thus terminated the big Irish catcher's connection with the team, which began when he joined the Cubs in 1922—a 21-year-old rookie with a world of hustle and an ingratiating grin.

Wrigley, who remarked, "We simply decided we'd have to buckle down and do something for the team," said waivers would be asked on Hartnett and that if there were no takers he would be given his unconditional release.

"We are announcing this decision now," Wrigley said, "both out of fairness to Hartnett and because we believe the fans expect and are entitled to know what's what about their ball club. Several names are now under consideration for the position of Cub manager in 1941. All the men we would like are under contract and their names cannot be discussed until we have made definite arrangements with them and their present employers."

This was taken to mean the new Cub manager would not be a Cub player, even though the name of Bill Herman, second baseman, long has been mentioned as a possible Cub managerial possibility. William A. (Billy) Meyer, who managed the Kansas City Club of the American Association last year, mentioned as a possible successor to Gabby, declined to comment when asked if he was to become manager of the Chicago club.

Hartnett, who succeeded Charlie Grimm as Cub pilot in July, 1938, and who has never worn any other major league uniform than that of the Cubs, said: "Wheel! Was it a surprise? This was the first time I'd seen Wrigley since the season ended. And it's the first time I've been out of a job since I started playing ball."

"I'm going to stay in baseball—I'd do anything just to stay in the game. I have no offers or plans and I'm not going to make any phone calls, just take them when they come—if they come. This is one of those things. You can't cry or bellyache about it. I hope the next fellow has a better time of it than I did."

"Old Tomato Face," as fans and players have affectionately called him down through the years, caught his last full season in 1937, when in 110 games he hit .354. Through the 1939 season he had a lifetime major league plate mark of 298 and last season, appearing at bat only 62 times, he hit .274.

Both Wrigley and Hartnett were obviously ill at ease when they appeared before newsmen, Wrigley sounding the tone of the conference by remarking, "This isn't particularly pleasant—Gabby's been with the club almost a quarter century." Hartnett, whose first two names are Charles Leo, will be 40 next month.

The dismissal was another episode in the Cub's recent turbulent history. Taking up the reins from Grimm, Hartnett led the team to the 1938 National League pennant. In 1939 the Cubs finished fourth and they wobbled badly to finish fifth this past season. Wrigley recently announced he desired to give up the presidency of the club and that problem still has to be met.

'Tide' Plays Click Against Tech in Drill; Rain Slows Bulldogs

Devils Ramble Through, Over Jackets' Line

Wright, Muerth Go Through Scrimmage Without Reinjury.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

If yesterday's scrimmage was an indication, Tech is going to have a hard time stopping Alabama's powerful running attack Saturday when the two teams meet on Grant field.

Crimson players run by the Red Devils gained materially on the first stringers all afternoon as Coach Bill Alexander sent his boys through their first and last hard scrimmage of the week.

The first team stayed in the rough work for over an hour and were on defense most of the time. The red-shirted backs skirted varsity ends for long gains and drove through the middle of the line for other advantages.

If the Jackets' scrubs and freshmen can do that well, coaches are wondering what Jimmy Nelson and Paul Spencer, two of Frank Thomas' aces, can do.

However, there were a couple of cheering notes in varsity play. Red Muerth, big first-string tackle, and Jim Wright, center, both took part in the drill and emerged without additional injuries.

Wright has been out for three weeks and Muerth two and their return is expected to boost the Tech defense no little. Fans got a scare, however, when Wright

Although a sellout crowd is expected for Saturday's Tech-Alabama game, there are still some 3,000 tickets left, Charley Griffin announced yesterday.

The tickets are on sale at the Tech athletic office.

got another lick on his bad ankle and was helped from the scrimmage. But three or four plays later he returned and played at top speed.

Muerth showed he has suffered none from his lacy. He blocked one Red Devil punt and played good ball, defensively.

The first team ran a few offensive plays and looked pretty good, especially Johnny Bosch. The little tailback broke through the line for sizable gains nearly every time he carried the ball and placed an extra point after the varsity scored a touchdown.

The field was muddy and the ball slippery, so passers had little chance to test their aim.

Jack Bradford, sophomore fullback, got back in scrimmage and took part in the workout until he re-injured his knee and had to be helped from the field. It is doubtful he will see any more service this season.

Ralph Plaster, another fullback, also missed the drill. He was out because of a bad tooth, but will be able to play against the Crimson.

The scrimmage was the only hard drill scheduled this week. Today's workout will be devoted to fundamentals and Friday's will be nothing more than a lot of running to loosen tight muscles.

JACK K. WINS.

FLORENCE, Ala., Nov. 13.—(AP) Jack K. foxhound owned by Albert A. Kreuger, of Metropolis, Ill., won the twentieth chase futurity of the National Foxhunting Association here today. Second place went to Pine Ridge Speed King, owned by Pine Ridge Kennels of Salisbury, N. C.

S. E. C. Grid Briefs

THREE L. S. U. MEN OUT. BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 13.—Three Louisiana State players are definitely out for the season, Coach Bernie Moore announced tonight on the eve of the Bengal squad's departure for the game with Auburn Saturday at Birmingham.

They are Herb McDonald, guard with torn elbow ligaments, and Leo Bird, tailback, and Aswell Stell, end, both receiving hospital treatment.

Bird is in New Orleans being examined for a head injury and Stell, in a hospital here, has an internal injury suffered in practice last week.

Emphasizing defense, Dawson worked his charges against a freshman team, which used Georgia plays. Three backs rotated against freshmen-executed Bulldog series.

Halfback "Bubber" Ely, who broke a thigh in the Alabama game, returned to practice wearing a steel brace on his injured digit, while Charlie Dufour, tackle, reported with several stitches in his chin.

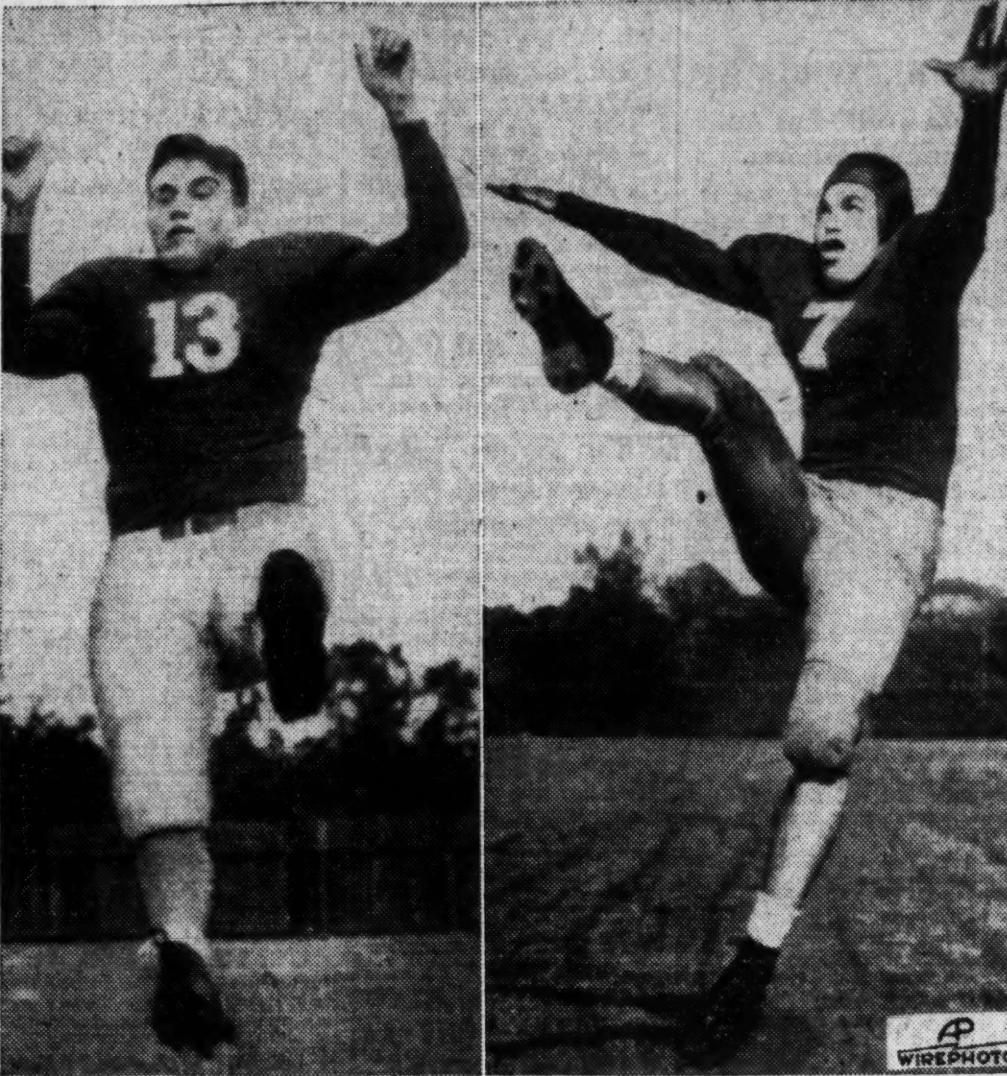

FIGHT FOR POSITIONS. AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Although the 1930 football season is running its course, the regular season is still a scrappy footballers are still scuffling for starting positions.

Latest fight has developed at fullback where Fry Irby is battling another sophomore, Jim Reynolds, for the regular assignment. The two sophs stepped into the picture with injury of Rufus Deal, a junior.

Coach Jack Meagher sent the first and second teams through a long scrimmage today in preparation for Louisiana State.

TIDE IN ROUGH DRILL. TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Scrimmage against Georgia Tech's red shirted backs today while Jimmy Nelson watched from the sidelines with a bruised leg.

Two other casualties who missed practice were Wheeler Leath, end, who has a twisted knee, and Irvy Woodall, guard, who was pulled by muscle. The three are expected to play Saturday, however. The Crimson will end drills for Tech tomorrow. The squad will sleep aboard train tomorrow night, leaving the Tuscaloosa railroad station at 5:15 p. m. Friday. A workout is scheduled on Grant field Friday afternoon.

THEIR LUCKY NUMBERS MAY BE CALLED.—NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—That 13 on Frankie Albert (left), Stanford quarterback, and the 7 worn by Jimmy Nelson, of Alabama, may be lucky numbers. They're two of the youths rating All-America consideration today because of their outstanding work in the backfield.

Tide, Huskers Favored For Orange Bowl Tilt

By H. J. ARONSTAM.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 13.—(UP)—Nine teams were tabbed tonight as good Orange Bowl prospects but, barring last-minute tricks of football's fickle fortunes, Nebraska and Alabama appeared to be the best bets for the citrus belt's New Year's day grid dish.

The other possibilities were Boston College, Fordham and Georgetown from the north, and Tennessee, Texas A. & M., Mississippi and Mississippi State from the south.

U. S. Army Riders Keep Jump Title

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Aided by a run of hard luck which dogged the crack Chilean riders for 48 hours, the United States Army's team tonight retained the international military perpetual challenge trophy and thereby won the military jumping honors of the fifty-fifth national horse show.

With their crack rider, Major Eduardo Yanez, sidelined by injuries to his arms suffered last night, and with the whole team mourning the death of their oldest mare, Chilena, this morning, the Chileans just couldn't un-track in the clinching event to night, and winning both the trophy with a perfect performance and the prized honors for the week-long competition was a sort of touch for the riders from Fort Riley, Kan.

Frank Sinkwich Probably Out Until Tech Tilt

Todd's Punting, Passing Is Cheering Note to Butts.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 13.—Rain drove Georgia's football squad inside today.

Coach Wallace Butts had planned only a light workout anyway and the Bulldogs got about as much good out of the indoor drill as they would have on the waterlogged practice field.

The Bulldog mentor, after a few calisthenics, showed pictures of last Saturday's Florida game and pointed out the numerous mistakes Georgia made in losing an 18-to-13 decision.

Coach Butts juggled his possible starting backfielders this afternoon as it became more and more apparent that Junio Spike Nelson is going to have to open at fullback slot. He'll see plenty of service even if he doesn't start.

Todd to Kick. When Nelson is in the game, big Jim Todd, the pass-slugging tailback, will have to be with him in order to take care of the kicking.

Red Keuper and Cliff Kimsey, both of whom have been running ahead of Nelson at fullback, are fair kickers but they are in bad condition after taking severe physical beatings in recent games.

And the length of time they play will be short, anyway. They have to work in the backfield with Heyward Allen, who can't kick at all.

Todd's kicking in Tuesday's outdoor drill indicated the big South Carolinian is going to find the touch that made him the outstanding punter on last year's freshman team. He hasn't been near as potent as a varsity man this season.

FINE PERFORMANCE. Jim gained a lot of confidence in the Florida game, even though Georgia lost. It was by far his best performance—he threw two touchdowns passes—and Georgia coaches believe he is on the verge of being ready for Southeastern Conference competition.

Todd and Allen will have to handle all the tail-backing duties against Tulane, since Frankie Sinkwich's injured ankle continues to heal slowly.

It's doubtful if Frank will get into another game this year until the Bulldogs face Georgia Tech November 30.

Alabama Foes Held to 94 Yds. Per Encounter

Tech and Alabama All Square After 25 Football Games.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Nov. 13.—The Crimson Tide of Alabama will go into Saturday's game with Georgia Tech at Atlanta with one of the best defensive records in the nation.

In the Tide's first six games this season opposing teams have gained but an average of 94.8 yards per game on the ground and in the air. Only Tennessee and Tulane have gained more than 100 yards rushing against Alabama, the Vols running up 154 yards from scrimmage and the Greenies gaining 121.

Alabama's six opponents have gained a net total of 281 yards rushing and 288 yards by passes for a net gain of but 569 yards in six games. Tide foes have averaged only 46.8 yards per game in running plays.

Although much has been written about Alabama's weakness in pass defense the Tide has allowed but 29 completions out of 102 attempts in six games. Opposing teams have gained an average of 48 yards per game through the air.

On the offensive Alabama hasn't exactly been loafing either. The Tide has gained a total of 1,287 yards from scrimmage in winning five games and losing one for an average of 214 yards per game.

On running and passing plays Alabama has an average of 233 yards per game.

Alabama has marked up a total of 87 first downs to its opponents' 37 and has scored 127 points to its foes' 33.

The Tide and the Jackets are all even in the 25 games played since 1902 with each winning 11 encounters and three ending in ties.

Alabama's complete record with Georgia Tech is as follows:

1902—Alabama 28, Ga. Tech 0.

1903—Alabama 5, Ga. Tech 12.

1904—Alabama 6, Ga. Tech 11.

1910—Alabama 0, Ga. Tech 28.

1911—Alabama 0, Ga. Tech 0.

1912—Alabama 3, Ga. Tech 21.

1914—Alabama 13, Ga. Tech 0.

1915—Alabama 7, Ga. Tech 21.

1916—Alabama 0, Ga. Tech 13.

Glory Is So Upset Scottie Calls The Doctor; He Tells Glory To Stay In

SYNOPSIS. Glory Stevens tears off her wedding gown, leaving the bride party waiting at the church, and just catches a train for Los Angeles and Hollywood. Since she has wanted to be an actress like her mother who died when Glory was 12. In the Pullman dressing room she meets Helen Jamison, who has won some recognition as a character actress. She advises Glory to return home, then calling herself a fool, suggests that she take an inexpensive apartment next to hers. Glory makes the studio rounds daily until her money is gone, then Helen urges Scottie Weston, her own agent, to discourage the girl and send her home. Instead he gets her a job in the Sunset studio wardrobe department, but the very first day a pin in a jacket sleeve scratches Mona Greer, and that temperamental star for whom Glory discharged, Scottie sends Glory to dramatic school and she is constantly with him at important night spots, wearing gowns designed by William Van Lint, Sunset's chief designer. After Mark Spencer, Scottie's handsome young lawyer, meets Glory he is with her daily. Allan Rhodes, popular movie lover, plays with her in a screen test and falls in love. All the time Scottie is in love with her and makes small parts in two pictures and moves to a smart apartment. Allan leaves Hollywood on business, he says, and Glory is distracted until he phones her on her birthday. When he returns, she has a beautiful diamond ring. She says she doesn't think she should accept it, and he tells her it is an engagement ring. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXI

"What is it?" she cried in alarm. "Tell me!"

And she felt the world turn black about her as Scottie Weston said, "Allan and Mona were married an hour ago in Yuma!"

Allan had married Mona! "No!" Glory cried. "It isn't true!"

Scottie put an arm about her and led her to a chair. "Poor kid! I'm sorry. I had to be the one to tell you. They flew to Yuma this afternoon. It's all over now. They're coming back to Hollywood tomorrow."

Glory stared at him wild-eyed, her mouth trembling. She mumbled incoherently, "But Allan is going to marry me . . . only last night he said so . . . She tricked him! She must have tricked him!" Pathetically she turned to Helen. "Oh, Helen, there's some mistake. He promised we'd be married. . . . He promised!"

There were tears in Helen's eyes but she shook her head. "It's true, honey. There's no mistake."

Glory could not believe it. Allan was hers. She loved him with all her heart. How could she go on without him? Never to feel his arms about her again; never to hear his compelling voice murmuring whispered endearments. It couldn't be true that he had gone to Yuma with Mona. That she had lost him forever. Scottie's news swept over her in great waves, smothering her, breaking her heart!

"Allan!" she screamed, pressing both hands to her aching temples. Her voice rose to an hysterical pitch as she called his name again and again.

Scottie Weston's face was white. "I'd better get a doctor," he said. "Put her to bed!"

Helen led the trembling figure into the bedroom. She undressed Glory as if she were a child. And now Glory began to cry. Great sobs tore from her throat. Her heart was filled with such unbearable pain that she felt it would burst. Ashen-faced, she lay in bed. Her blue eyes were dull with suffering, she trembled with uncontrolled emotion. Vaguely she realized that the doctor had come. She heard him asking if she had had a shock, and felt the prick of a needle in her arm, and then oblivion.

"I wish I'd never wake up," Glory thought dully as the drug began to take effect.

In the kitchen Scottie poured himself a drink. "That hell!" he said to Helen. "I'd like to get my hands on him!"

Wearily, Helen sat down on the kitchen stool. "You're not the only one. Plenty of people in Hollywood have scores to even with Allan Rhodes."

"Well, at least it's over," Scottie said grimly. "She's rid of him now."

"I wish I could be sure of that," Helen replied cynically. "He's married to Mona to save his skin with the studio. But Allan's the kind that wants to have his cake and eat it too. I'm not so sure he won't try to get Glory back again."

"If he does," Scottie Weston threatened, "I'll break his neck!"

The next day found Glory calmer but the pain in her heart still throbbled. Circles of grief were stamped beneath the blue eyes and her face was drawn with the ravages of last night's hysteria. She knew now that there was no mistake. Mona and Allan were married and she must face the facts as they were. She told herself that Allan was a coward, that he didn't have the courage of his convictions. He had let Mona frighten him into marriage. He had repudiated his promise to Glory. She realized that what he had done to her was unforgivable, but it did not ease her suffering. It could not erase his handsome image from her heart. Memories spun around in a mad circle. If only she could stop thinking!

The doctor had ordered her to stay at home, but Glory could not relax. She paced the floor while Helen tried to make conversation. "I stopped to see Honey Newton," she said cheerfully. "You should see that apartment. It's perfectly gorgeous and she has a mink coat that would knock your eyes out."

Glory tried to appear interested. She asked, "Did you get any clues about where the money comes from?"

"Not a clue. She's a smooth one," Helen reported. "I'll bet there's a wov of a story behind all this!"

But Glory had begun to cry. "Oh, Helen!" she sobbed. "I can't stand it. How could he do this to me?"

Helen put her arms about the girl's trembling shoulders. "You've got to snap out of it, baby! Allan's not worth suffering over. You know that by this time. And you've got your career to think about. Nothing is any different from what it was before. You're still going places!"

"Going places?" Glory repeated dully. "But what does it mean? What does anything mean without Allan?"

"It's what you've always wanted, more than anything, you used to say. Have you forgotten?"

Glory smiled bitterly. Yes, she had said that once, but it was before she had known Allan Rhodes! Could any amount of success blot out Allan's memory?

When Scottie dropped in that afternoon he repeated Helen's advice. "None of us can have everything," he told her kindly. "And you've got a career to think about. You've got a chance to be a star! Don't let us down!"

In spite of her aching heart, Glory's sense of fair play came to the rescue. She wouldn't let them down. Scottie, Helen, Van and Mark Cavell. All those who had helped and were counting on her success! She would be a star. She would throw herself into her work. She would fight for fame—forget everything else. Perhaps some day she could even forget Allan Rhodes!

The next few weeks were the hardest that Glory had ever known. Her role in the picture required more skill than she had as yet been called upon to display. It was hard, grueling work. When she reached home in the evening, she threw herself on the bed in sheer exhaustion. Tillie brought her supper on a tray, but more often than not Glory was too tired to eat it. At 6:30 in the morning she was ready to go to the studio again. Ready for the tedious make-up job, the blinding hot lights, the unceasing repetition. Day after day the same routine. Work, work, work! She was too tired for anything else, and Scottie did not insist. At this point in her career the picture was everything. This was her third. The other two had been released and the fan letters showed that the public recognized the appeal of Glory Stevens.

And what did it matter, Glory wondered grimly. Her life held no joy, no pleasure, no relaxation. Exhaustion was the only sensation she had away from the camera.

She had heard that Allan was working at another studio. Glory tried not to think of him but sometimes her heart caught up with day off as she sat in her apartment it seemed impossible to be brave any longer. Tears ran down her face and then, at the very moment when she wished most to be alone, the buzzer rang. It was Mark Spencer.

"I've been in New York," he explained. He did not refer to her tears, but drew out a fresh linen handkerchief and pressed it into her hand.

"Thanks," Glory said, trying to smile. "Get your coat," Mark ordered. "You're going to spend the rest of the day with me."

Glory obeyed. She was grateful to Mark for diverting her gloomy thoughts. Grateful that he did not mention Allan Rhodes. Not once did he remind her that he had "told you so."

They went to a beach club for a swim in the salt-water pool. Glory felt refreshed and invigorated by the unaccustomed exercise. Mark was an excellent swimmer and Glory watched smiling as he executed a series of difficult dives.

Later they had dinner in the dining room which overlooked the ocean. Glory felt a sense of ease. Mark always had known how to soothe her nerves and give her a sense of peace.

"How's the career?" he inquired politely. "You're not really interested, are you?"

"Not much," Mark admitted, grinning. "Glory gazed thoughtfully out upon the sea, gray and sad in the deepening twilight."

"It certainly is all work and no play," she told him. "but I suppose that's what you have to pay for success."

"Of all depends upon your idea of success," Mark replied. "Money and fame aren't everything."

"What is then?" Glory asked. "A deep satisfaction in living," he said quietly. "Not just existing in an artificial world, but experiencing the fundamental realities."

They were silent for a moment, then Glory sighed. "But what are the fundamentals, Mark? The satisfactory things?"

"You'll learn," Mark said. "We all do, but some of us have to do it the hard way."

Glory laughed ruefully. "You mean me?" she said, thinking of Allan.
